The Independent Makes History

Two major and important deductions may be drawn from the total of the nation's votes on the day of decision, Nov. 7, 1950:

One is that we have gained a substantial independent vote in this country. It was failure to recognize that fact which wrecked the pollsters two years ago. The poll takers classify this vote as undecided. It isn't that at all. It is an independent vote, and it can make important decisions, as we have just seen.

The second conclusion to be drawn is that the Taft victory in Ohio, which was the key election of the entire day, was a moral victory made possible by the independent vote, and not just a political triumph.

We have gained about 20 million new voters in the past decade and apparently they have made a major contribution to the independent ranks. They cross party lines and they are not bound by party loyalties.

The weight of this independent vote makes possible a third deduction: It is that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower is almost surely to be drafted by the Republican convention in 1952, and, if he accepts the call, he will receive the independent vote and be overwhelmingly elected.

Taft

Taft's victory is important in that it, more than any other decision made by the voters, indicates that the people want to move a little nearer the center of the road. Whether they will remain there depends on how well the new Congress handles the problems of the next two years. It has a chance, as the Taft majority demonstrates, to prove that a more conservative program can meet the demands of the people.

Ohio was the national symbol because Taft was that symbol.

To understand that his victory was also a moral decision by the people of his state, it is necessary to examine the opposition. The drift to Taft was just beginning to be felt when I was in his state a week before the election. It gained momentum as the election approached because of the comparison before the people. The state auditor, "Jumping Joe" Ferguson, was, and is, honest, beloved by his family and friends.

Not the Point

The fact that he is not an educated man is not a point. The point is that he has not developed or made himself a self-educated man. He is an amiable, clownish fellow. But, educated men wrote his speeches for him and in those speeches he was making fun of Taft because Taft was educated. In his speeches he was crying Taft down because the senator was a successful man, and from a family in which others had been successful.

Here was, in an indirect and subtle manner, an attack on the basic meaning of this country, namely that it is a country where one can obtain an education and have opportunity for a success, large or small.

His speeches did something else. They made an appeal which has been described as one directed to the stomach and not at all to the heart. The people are coming to learn that, while their government must have as its first interest the national welfare, it is true that what is good for the people is good for the country. But, the independent vote, at least, has spoken to say that they will not be bought up by promises of political pie.

The Taft election proved something else.

Labor

The labor vote cannot be delivered on a state-wide basis. It demonstrated something else, too. Taft got a lot of labor votes. He received them because labor finally is getting around to reading the Taft-Hartley Act, and they find it protects members from power-mad union bosses as well as from other types of bosses with designs upon them.

The union bosses called it a slave labor law.

But, pretty soon it became obvious there were no slaves. Anyone could see that. So, in Ohio, the Taft-Hartley Act was hardly mentioned.

The Taft election means the narrow control of Congress held by the administration is meaningless. It doesn't exist, in fact, though the figures do indicate it.

The day was in truth one of decision.

Russell Is Boomed As Majority Leader

Announcement as to Lucas' Vacated Post Seen Today

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—A movement is under way to name Sen. Russell as Majority Leader of the Senate to succeed Sen. Scott Lucas, of Illinois, who was defeated in Tuesday's general election.

Several Western Democratic Senators were trying to reach Russell Wednesday to persuade him to seek the post. Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada, and Sen. Ernest McFarland of Arizona, were two of them.

Sen. Russell

Russell, who declined to offer for the position two years ago, is expected to arrive in Washington Thursday and make an announcement as to his availability. Southern Democrats, plus the four Democratic Senators from the border states of Kentucky and Oklahoma, will constitute more than a majority of the party representation in the new Senate, which the Democrats will control by the narrow margin of 49 to 47.

Russell held off being a candidate two years ago because he felt it would be embarrassing both to himself and the President if he couldn't go along with some of the Administration's proposals. The Georgia Senator led the Southern floor fight against the President's Civil Rights program.

So far as is known the Administration has not yet had time to appraise the situation with respect to Senator Lucas' defeat, but there is talk of Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming being offered as the White House favorite. Others mentioned are Sen. Brien McMahon of Connecticut, who has just won reelection, and Sen. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico, former Secretary of Agriculture. Both of the latter, however, are newcomers and party members usually give more heed to seniority standing in filling the top leadership post.

Meanwhile Senator Russell is slated to automatically assume the chairmanship of the powerful Armed Services Committee of the Senate. He was second ranking to Chairman Millard Tydings of Maryland, who was upset in Tuesday's election. When he moves into this post, Georgia will have chairmen of this powerful defense committee in both the Senate and House. Rep. Carl Vinson of Milledgeville heads the Armed Services Committee in the House.

Russell will move up to third ranking majority member on the powerful Committee on Appropriations, because of the defeat of Sen. Elmer Thomas of Utah.

The elections will cause no changes among other Georgia Congressmen.

Truman Afloat; Still Cheerful

ABOARD THE YACHT MY MARY GAIL, On the Potomac River, Nov. 8—(U.P.)—President Truman was described by aides Wednesday as being "very cheerful" despite sharp Democratic reverses in Tuesday's general elections.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said the Chief Executive was disappointed, however, by the defeat of several key Senate lieutenants, including Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas.

He said the President and his staff took comfort in the fact that the Democrats will retain control of the Senate by a two-vote margin and will have a "comfortable majority" in the House.

China Reds Invited to UN Session

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 8—(U.P.)—The United States demanded Wednesday that the United Nations Security Council order Chinese Communist troops out of Korea. But American Delegate Warren R. Austin voted with the majority as the Council invited the Peking regime to rush representatives here to join the debate.

It was the first time in the 10-month-old East-West fight over Chinese credentials that the United States voted to allow Chinese Communists to come here and argue their case.

In debate, Austin warned that Chinese intervention in the Korean war raised "a grave danger" of a new world war, and told the Council that the Chinese Communists should be "summoned" rather than "invited" to explain intervention charges made by Gen. MacArthur.

But he did not press the "summons" proposal and the Council adopted a British proposal to send Peking a regular invitation to the debate on the special MacArthur report.

The vote was eight in favor, China and Cuba against, with Egypt abstaining.

Chinese Delegate Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang did not claim his negative vote was a veto as he did in September when the Chinese Communists were invited to come here, starting Nov. 15, for debate on their charges that the U. S. committed aggression in sending the seventh fleet to protect Formosa.

At that time, the Council blocked Tsiang's attempt to use the double veto, and Peking envoys have been expected to arrive here from Prague early next week. However, they have not applied for American visas.

Austin insisted the Council not only order withdrawal of Chinese Communist troops but that it demand that Peking stop all further assistance to the "North Korean aggressor." However, he did not immediately put his demands in a formal resolution.

"This Council," he said, "is the guardian of international peace and security and must re-

Informer Shuts Up On Drury Slaying

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 8—(U.P.)—A forgery suspect who claimed he knew who killed Private Detective William Drury in Chicago refused to talk about it Wednesday night when an Illinois authority asked for the details.

Charles Degliumberti, 35, told Trenton police who arrested him on a bad check charge that he knew the killer of Drury, who was shot to death before he was to testify before the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

But the prisoner declined to amplify when Asst. Illinois State's Attorney Edwin T. Breen arrived at Mercer County Jail to question him.

NAZI ATROCITY ORPHAN

Police Lift Despair From Sobbing Girl

By KEELER McCARTNEY

An attractive, dark-haired Jewish girl who found hope in the New World and then lost it again, Thursday began life anew with a smile of thanks to the Atlanta Police Department.

The girl, 21, officially listed as a "War Orphan," first came to police attention Tuesday night. Dets. R. E. Sheppard and Harry McCollister noticed her walking dejectedly along Peachtree.

A man appeared to be following her, attempting to begin a conversation. The detectives watched. She appeared to quicken her pace and shake her head.

The detectives circled the block and came back. The would-be suitor had gone. But others drew up to the curbing in cars offering her a ride.

A closer observation showed she was crying. The detectives stopped to investigate.

"I do not understand," she sobbed in broken English.

At headquarters, she sobbed out her story to policewomen Bessie O'Quinn and Emily Lykes. She was born near Berlin of German-Jewish parents. At 10, she was placed in a Nazi concentration camp, along with a sister and brother.

A year later, a Nazi guard asked her if she would like to see her mother. The mother came, but as she ran forward to pick up the child, a rifle exploded. The mother pitched forward dead.

The sister and brother died of starvation and exposure.

Shyly, she exhibited for policewomen bullet scars in her legs and feet. A Nazi guard had made improper advances. When she resisted, he struck her across the face, knocking out four front teeth. He emptied a revolver into her feet and legs as she lay helpless on the ground.

After release from the concentration camp, she came to America. She was married to a New-

Diplomacy Held Idling Red Chinese

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday, Nov. 9—(AP)—A U. S. Eighth Army spokesman Thursday said Red Chinese troops may be avoiding a fight in North Korea pending high-level diplomatic moves which would affect the course of the Korean war.

Both in the northwest, where they face the Eighth Army, and in the northeast, where the U. S. 10th Corps is located, the Communists have been pulling back.

The withdrawal in the northwest has been gradual over a four-day period.

In the northeast a Tenth Corps spokesman said the Chinese 184th Division was "in retreat" from the giant Changjin hydroelectric complex.

He said U. S. Marines have not been in contact with the Reds for two days but cautiously had not followed the Red pullback.

But the South Korean Seventh Division attacking toward Won, in the northwest sector, six miles north of Kunu, ran into heavy mortar and automatic fire a mile and a half from the town.

SEOUL, Nov. 9—(Thursday) (INS)—Navy Panther Jets from Carrier Task Force 77 shot down a Russian-type MIG-15 jet plane Thursday while providing fighter cover for carrier planes bombing Yalu River bridges.

"It is a very puzzling situation," a staff officer said. "The war is now in a strange phase in which diplomatic moves perhaps are as important as military moves."

The spokesman suggested two possible reasons for the lack of aggressiveness by the Reds:

1. The Reds may be regrouping for offensive action.

2. Evidence that the Communists have shifted more strength to the center of the line.

But, he emphasized, at no point on the 8th Army's northwestern Korea front has there been any major contact with the enemy in the past four days.

Gwinnett Crash Destroys 11 Cattle

DULUTH, Nov. 8—(AP)—Two trucks collided in Gwinnett County near here Wednesday, killing 11 cattle and injuring the cattle truck driver, E. R. Clack, Jr., 17, of Auburn, Ala.

Clacks' truck and one driven by Elmer Murphree, of Summit, Ala., collided sending the cattle truck down the embankment where it caught fire, state patrolmen said.

Maybe Soon, Says Ike of Europe Job

FORT WORTH, Texas—Nov. 8 (AP)—General Eisenhower, who has been much talked of for commander of Western European defense forces, said here Wednesday he "could easily be in Europe soon."

"For whatever military duty there may be in store for me," Eisenhower added as he started a four-day Texas tour.

Later he supplemented this to say he had "no positive word" concerning any possible future duties.

The General's comments came in a news conference, and in statements made later.

The wartime Supreme Allied Commander said:

"There has been considerable speculation in the papers about the job I may be taking over there. I can only repeat what I have said. 'I'm a soldier and I'll serve wherever I am asked to serve."

The General, now President of Columbia University, was questioned shortly after his arrival here. He said he couldn't comment on the role Western Germany should play in the program for the defense of Western Europe.

"It might be my job to get all these people to work together," Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower conferred Oct. 28 with President Truman and said he was willing to take any uniformed assignment given him.

But the General also said at that time that Mr. Truman hadn't made any direct proposal to him.

Installers On Strike; Peril Phones

By BILL DIEHL

Over 900 Southeastern Western Electric CIO-CWA telephone installers, including about 150 in Atlanta, were ordered to leave their jobs in a nationwide strike beginning at 6 a. m. Thursday morning. Union members in 10 key cities throughout the nation gave a preview of the walkout when they left their jobs earlier in the evening.

Local union Secretary Roy Roynolds said, "We will definitely strike at 6 a. m. Thursday but we will not put up any picket lines until further notice."

Some 37,000 WE union members in the nation are scheduled to leave their jobs. Their action may affect as many as 300,000 of the Bell Telephone System's 500,000 employees, depending on when and where picket lines are established.

In a Wednesday afternoon press conference, Southern Bell Vice President G. D. Garner, said the telephone company was "watching and waiting" for the CIO-CWA Western Electric developments.

"We're innocent bystanders in this matter," he said. "We just can't make any plans until we know definitely what's going to happen."

Strike-bound employees install switchboards and other central office equipment but operate out of Southern Bell offfices. CIO telephone union members have been instructed to honor WE pickets.

Telephone officials in Atlanta, meanwhile, predicted the strike would have little effect on local service and will ony slightly interfere with long distance calls. Supervisors and nonunion personnel, they said, should be able to handle all calls.

Leo Lambert, President of local division 18 of the Western Electric CIO-CWA, said a meeting was held here Wednesday but would reveal none of the developments of the session other than that strike matters were discussed. He added 200 members attended, including some WE sales force union employees.

GOP Can Rule Senate, Sway House Action

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—The Republicans have taken all but arithmetical control of the United States Senate in the oncoming 82d Congress. They have cut deeply, though not at all decisively, into the Democratic majority for the new House of Representatives.

They have, in a net gain of five, seized 47 of the Senate's 96 seats, a number far more than enough to give them, in association with the Southern Democrats, an almost unquestioned mastery of the highest domestic issues of President Truman's Fair Deal program.

hey have struck down two of the most powerful national Democratic figures in the field of legislative action, Sen. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, the Democratic Senate floor leader, and Sen. Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

They have reduced by about two-thirds the House majority held by the Democrats in the present, and expiring, 81st Congress.

All this the Republicans had accomplished on the showing of returns Wednesday night, which approached the complete, from a very heavy balloting Tuesday that established many areas of dissatisfaction, particularly in the Middle West, but nothing so strong as a nation-wide revulsion from the Democrats.

The Republican minority, which but for the one brief period of the 80th Congress from 1946 to 1948 had known no grand victory since Franklin D. Roosevelt started the New Deal half a generation ago, has reasserted its vitality with great force.

They have brought forward, or strengthened visibly, a good handful of possible Republican presidential contenders in 1952—Sen. Robert A. Taft, of Ohio; Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Gov. (and now Senator) James Duff, of Pennsylvania, and Gov. Earl Warren, of California.

All but one of these, Taft, stands well to the left of the orthodox Republican Party which he rather generally, but not in every aspect, so represents, and they have not been associated with his hostility or skepticism toward the present internationalist policy of the Truman Administration.

But in the election itself, despite the fact that it thrust upward three more or less "liberal" Republicans against one of an older school, whatever pattern was perceptible seemed to indicate a restless stirring in the Midwest of what the Democrats would call "isolationism."

The most impressive Republican gains came from the center of the country, first of all, and then from the Far West. Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, Ohio—these states in the Republican heartland were impressively, in this election, turning toward home again.

This news meant for Mr. Truman more than the wreck of his

Unit Ban In Primary Is Sought

Issue Is Repeal Or Reapportion

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Governor Talmadge and Political Leader Roy Harris Wednesday conceded defeat of the county unit amendment for the general election as some jubilant foes prepared a January legislative fight for either repeal or reapportionment under the unit system in the Democratic primaries.

Latest tabulations of Tuesday's election showed 111,702 votes in favor of extending the system into the general election and 143,492 against it. The reports, still incomplete, were from 1,487 of the 1,740 precincts and 149 of 159 counties.

Talmadge and Harris declared the fight for the unit plan "is just begun." They did not disclose what new steps they would take.

C. Baxter Jones, Jr., Atlanta attorney and son of one of the Governor's top legal advisors, announced dissolution of the statewide committee he formed to fight the amendment. He said the group was formed solely to fight extension of the unit system into the general election, and it was being automatically disbanded now "because nothing remains to be fought." The committee was not interested in the unit plan as applied to the primary.

However, some legislators said they were drafting bills either to repeal the unit plan or provide for reapportionment as applied to the primary. They declined to be quoted by name.

Talmadge blamed defeat on the "bloc" vote. He contended the larger counties voted "90 percent" of their voting strength while rural counties voted only "30 percent" of their voting strength.

The so-called "country counties" were having a fairly close race on the amendment in incomplete returns, while the "big city" counties opposed it by a margin of almost three to one.

A tabulation of incomplete returns showed the four-unit and two-unit counties favoring the unit plan by a vote of 79,729 to 66,994. At the same time, the six-unit counties were opposing it by a vote of 70,545 to 28,382.

Fulton County, the most heavily populated county in the State, cast only approximately 33 percent of its total registration of 130,000.

Fulton opposed the amendment by a vote of 35,855 to 7,951.

Chatham, another six-unit county, favored it by a vote of 8,890 to 6,764.

With many rural pro-Talmadge counties voting against the amendment, and others sharply dividing

GOP Gains Good Omen, George Says

Senator George, veteran Georgia Democratic Senator, expressed belief Wednesday that Republican gains in Congress would have a steadying effect upon the nation's economy.

The narrow margin of Democratic control of the next Senate also will improve the bipartisan foreign policy, George, an expert on foreign relations and financial affairs, said. And it will preserve the two-party system of government in this country, he added.

"The Republican gains will serve to check the unnecessary spending by the Administration," the senior Senator asserted. "Many of our Southern Democrats want to check this nonessential spending. It doesn't matter how high taxes are raised and how rigid controls are put, if we don't stop the spree of red-ink spending, we cannot handle the problem."

Asked if he thinks the Truman Administration will attempt to rush through some "Fair Deal" legislation in the "lame duck" session to convene Nov. 27, or earlier, George answered:

"It wouldn't get very far."

$2,250,000 Street Tax Gleaning Questioned

By HERMAN HANCOCK

The City may have collected illegally approximately $2,250,000 in street taxes from 50,000 Atlanta males in the last 15 years.

Doubt that the municipality can enforce street tax payments was expressed Wednesday following a conference between Councilman Wayne Blanchard, of the Sixth Ward, and City Attorney Jack Savage.

A charter provision empowers the City to collect a street tax from all males between the ages of 21 and 50 if they are subject to an old state law which required a road tax from males in the same category.

The hitch is that the state law was repealed by a special act of the Georgia Legislature in 1935, but the City has continued to collect its street tax.

During the past 15 years, approximately 50,000 Atlantans have paid $3 each per year in street taxes.

Although Savage declined to discuss the probability that authority for collection of the tax no longer exists, legal sources insisted that there is a legal axiom under which payment of taxes precludes a refund unless they were paid under protest.

This means that even if the tax were collected illegally and the taxpayer failed to file a formal protest, he would have no legal claim to a refund. It also could mean that a special action of the Georgia Legislature may be necessary to make the levy legal if the City insists on continuing the levy.

Red Danube Puppets Breaching Arms Pact

Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary Building Forces To Excess

By C. L. SULZBERGER
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

BELGRADE, Nov. 8—Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary, the three Danubian States which were allies of Hitler during World War II and which are now satellites of the Soviet Union, are violating the military clauses of the 1946 Paris peace treaties and are building up large armies in excess of the limitations specifically fixed by those statutes.

This was affirmed Wednesday by Col. Gen. Kotchha Popovitch, chief of staff of the Yugoslav armed forces (land, air and sea) in a conversation with this correspondent.

According to sources here, Bulgaria has now twice as many men under arms as is permitted by the Paris treaty and has received considerable heavy equipment from the Soviet Union—armor and aircraft—which is precisely forbidden by the 1946 agreement.

Likewise, Rumania, according to the Belgrade Ministry of Defense, is more than 80 percent above treaty limitations in armed man power and Hungary has approximately twice as many soldiers as are permitted by the peace treaty.

In addition to this disturbing situation, it is reported here that approximately six Soviet ground and air divisions have been spotted in Romania and Hungary in the vicinity of the Yugoslav borders during recent months.

According to Yugoslav official information the following military violations of the treaties can be precisely specified:

Bulgaria—By the Paris treaty Bulgaria is permitted 65,500 men under arms in the combined army, air force and navy. This could at most total a maximum of eight army divisions. However, Sofia has summoned three classes of recruits to the colors and is prolonging their service, with the result that as of this moment about 130,000 men are under arms.

Furthermore, the peace treaty stipulates that no new military equipment can be sent into Bulgaria to increase the striking power of the limited armed forces permitted. Nevertheless, the general staff here has information that between 300 and 400 Soviet T-34 tanks have been sent to Bulgaria. These are the improved medium tanks of fast speed which Moscow sent to the North Korean army.

The Paris treaty permitted Bulgaria, according to the Yugoslavs, 90 aircraft, of which only 70 could be military planes.

This has now been drastically exceeded, according to Belgrade's information.

Rumania—The peace treaty, according to documentation available here, limits Rumania's armed forces to 138,000 men. These, Yugoslavia believes, are now up to 250,000, including 50,000 militia.

In addition there have recently been up to four Soviet divisions in Rumania, including one air division and one motorized division.

Hungary—The peace treaty, according to the Yugoslavs, limits that country's armed forces to 65,000 men. Despite such restrictions, Belgrade estimates that Budapest has between 120,000 and 130,000 men under arms, including three classes of recruits—approximately double the figure agreed upon by the signatory powers.

The Paris treaty permits Hungary 70 military aircraft but already this figure has been exceeded and Budapest has up to more than 100 fighters and light bombers. One Soviet air division and one Soviet motorized division are believed to be stationed in Hungary near the Yugoslav border.

Prayer, Not UN, Answer To Peace Quest, Says Graham

A delegation of 2,300 railroad executives, workers and their families joined a chilly crowd of 12,000 persons who listened at Ponce de Leon Park Wednesday night as Billy Graham told them "the UN will never bring peace . . . only prayer can do the job!"

"The UN is built on false foundation," he said. "It is built on human frailties and faults. Prayer is the only answer for a world of peace."

Accusing the present generation of "forgetting how to blush," Dr. Graham launched one of his longest sermons to date on the state of the world and the country. He said he has no faith in "man or his government agencies. I only have faith in God. He will return soon and we will all live in a glorious theocracy."

An estimated 150 people went to the front of the canvas enclosed tabernacle following the sermon and prepared to confess their sins and pledge their faith in God.

Also present in the audience were 300 Carrolltonians who arrived in a delegation by motorcade. Thursday Dr. Graham flies to Fort Worth, where he will share speaking honors at the Texas State Baptist Convention with Dr. R. G. Lee, president of the Baptist World Alliance. Associate Evangelist Grady Wilson will conduct the Thursday night meeting in Atlanta. Dr. Graham will return Friday and conduct a military service for an audience expected to include 1,000 members of the Armed Forces.

CIRCUS COMES TO TOWN

By PAUL JONES

Cecil B. DeMille's ace production chief mingled with thousands of Atlanta circus fans at Lakewood Wednesday as the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Big Top unfolded its 1950 production in a one-day stand.

Roy W. Burns, Hollywood production director, said he was in town to clear up minor technicalities before DeMille begins production of his great circus film in Sarasota, Fla., Jan. 15.

At his side was a Paramount artist who made hurried sketches of the Atlanta throng and of the Lakewood setting.

Burns said the first scene to be filmed would be a tremendous wreck sequence in which a circus train is piled up in the night. And, he indicated, the mass elephant murder here many years ago, "probably" would be injected as a highlight in the film, which will star Betty Hutton, James Stewart, Dorothy Lamour, Burt Lancaster—and "maybe," Clark Gable.

As the matinee audience filed into the Big Top for the extravaganza, Burns ordered Ringling Bros. staff protographer to shoot pictures of practically all personalities on the circus lot—the 1,400 stars and laborers. Dick Miller, the camerman, said he already has exposed more than 2,000 pieces of film covering all phases of the circus. He said he had made at least 10 shots of how a rope was tied to the stakes. Others depicted the show in progress and backstage life.

The production director and artist appeared "disturbed" when their presence was discovered. But they co-operated in every way with the press. They boarded a plane for Hollywood shortly after the band struck up for the opening number, which signnaled the beginning of one of the Big Top's most auspicious productions.

The circus played to almost a capacity audience Wednesday night, unveiling a thoroughly revamped format, which highlighted three big production—or spectacle numbers—and a number of new European acts. Gone were the tiger and lion acts, which were used as openers for many years. In their stead John Ringling North had produced a wild animal fantasy which abounds in color and novelty.

"When Dreams Come True," billed in circus parlance as the "most prodigious production in circus history," came near to living up to that superlative billing. Unus, the "One and Only" who stands on his forefinger, defied reporters and photographers to expose his stunt as he thrilled thousands with the unbelievable.

"Old Vienna," and "Jungle Drums," other "specs," thrilled the throng with dazzling costumes, horsemanship, giant floats and weird tom-tom rhythms.

The aerial circus seemed to have been minimized from past years. But the comedy of the clowns, the performing elephants and the work of such celebrated troupes as the Alzanas, the Hasleys, and the Chaludis in their daredevil stunts left everyone with the impression they had seen "The Greatest Show On Earth."

Philippines Offered Aid

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

MANILA, Nov. 8—Aid to the Philippines, supervised and administered by the Economic Cooperation Administration in accordance with the Bell Mission's recommendations was tactfully offered Wednesday by Administrator William C. Foster as President Truman's special emissary. Indications were that President Elpido Quirino's Administration will accept the offer without long hesitation or binding reservations.

Quirino announced he and Foster had already "reached a common ground" and had "practically come to an understanding regarding the complete form in which a program of execution of the Bell recommendations could be carried out."

Quirino referred to the report of a 24-man mission headed by Daniel W. Bell, former undersecretary of the Treasury, which recently spent three months intensively investigating the tottering Philippine economy and recommended $250,000,000 monetary assistance over to a five-year period, provided the Philippines agree to certain measures.

Judiciary Puzzled by Pay Defeat

By HOKE SMITH MAY

Georgia judicial circles were puzzled Wednesday as trickling returns brought news of a commanding defeat to a Constitutional Amendment boosting salaries of Judges of the Supreme Court, Court of Appeals and Superior Courts.

A late tabulation showed the amendment trailing by 18,000 votes as both rural and city precincts reported. Latest reports showed for the amendment 55,813, and against 73,802.

At the same time, two other state-wide amendments — exclusive of the controversial unit system proposal—apparently were on their way to passage.

Amendment No. 3 giving a $100,000 reward to the first person bringing in a commercial oil well in the State was leading 58-954 to 47,680. And Amendment No. 4 giving county school boards the right to incur loans gained a strong lead of 62,289 against 34,764.

The proposed pay hike would have increased salaries of Supreme Court and Court of Appeals Judges from $8,000 to $12,000 a year and boosted Superior Court Judges' pay from $6,000 to $8,000 a year providing that the yearly salary could not exceed $12,000 including a county supplement.

Both rural and city voters showed a pronounced dislike for the move.

In Fulton County, where the amendment was considered a sure bet, unpredictable voters vetoed the pay hike by 2,000 ballots, and Atlanta ballot casters beat the proposal by 400 votes.

Election observers, puzzling over the amendment's defeat, came up with a two-sided conclusion:

The proposal's first place spot on the ballot combined with heavy talk of economy on both a national and state level injured its chance.

And the strong city antipathy apparently stemmed from the fact that big county voters who were going out principally to vote against the county unit amendment, automatically voted "no" on the judges proposal as well.

Observers said attitudes such as these must be the only explanations since there was no heavy pre-election sentiment for or against the amendment.

Med School Gets $31,900 at Emory

Two grants totaling $31,900 have been awarded Emory University School of Medicine for its training program, Dr. R. Hugh Wood, dean, announced Wednesday.

The National Institute of Mental Health awarded the school $17,900 for use in its graduate and undergraduate programs in psychiatry. The National Heart Institute allocated $14,000 to Emory for use in improving the teaching curriculum in cardiovascular diseases.

Both grants were made by the U. S. Surgeon General and both will enable Emory to "do a better job of preparing doctors," Dr. Wood declared.

Fulton School Vote Brings Up Question

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

Fulton County officials and their legal advisors are scratching their heads over the moot question: Did—or did not—Amendments 26 and 29 win approval in Tuesday's election?

Some believe they did. Some believe they didn't.

Most declined to say definitely.

Both amendments were approved by the majority of voters in both the City of Atlanta and Fulton County. But both amendments failed to get a majority in Fulton County outside the City limits.

Amendment 26 provides that homestead exemption from taxation shall not apply to the assessment and collection of taxes for the support and maintenance of education in Fulton County.

Amendment 29 increases the debt limitation in the Fulton County School District from seven to 10 percent of all taxable property.

Cy Gordy, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who worked for approval of the amendments, pointed out that some legal fine print required approval by the majority of voters in "the Fulton County School District." He noted they failed to get approval outside the City.

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook said it would be "dangerous" to comment before he studied the matter. He said he would give an official ruling if called upon.

County School Supt. Paul West said he was "pretty sure" Amendment 26 had passed—but he was not positive about Amendment 29.

He pointed out that people inside the City limits pay County taxes and therefore should vote on the homestead exemption amendment.

James C. Shelor, Chairman of the Fulton County Board of Education, said he had no answer to the question but would leave it in the hands of legal authorities.

Elbert Tuttle, County school attorney, said he was "willing to go out on a limb" and say he believed both amendments had passed. He said he believed a majority of votes in the entire County was all that was necessary for approval.

The five amendments which affect the Plan of Improvement for Atlanta and Fulton County won approval because they were given overwhelming majorities inside the City limits. The majorities inside the City offset those against the amendments in rural areas of Fulton County.

An amendment (No. 28) to permit Fulton County to contribute to State institutions also was approved, but voters rejected the proposed amendment which would guarantee Fulton County Superior Court judges a $4,000 a year annual supplement from the County treasury.

WINNING SMILE — Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Republican, Iowa, smiles in Cedar Rapids when returns showed he had amassed a winning total of votes over opponent Al Loveland, Democrat. The Senator said he would "continue to serve the peoples of Iowa and the nation to the best of my ability."

Mock Race Reaps Votes

But Atlanta Journal columnist Morgan Blake reaped the fruits of a humorous mock campaign for Governor with several thousand write-in votes from all over Georgia.

Scattered write-ins for perennial gubernatorial candidate Talmadge Bowers, of Canton, and for Mrs. Helen Dortsch Longstreet, of Marietta, failed to effect election of the entire Democratic slate of nominees—but spiced the work of vote tabulators.

Former Acting Gov. M. E. Thompson, defeated by Talmadge in the primary, received 25 write-in votes, an incomplete Associated Press tabulation showed. One-time gubernatorial candidate James V. Carmichael had 13, and two were cast for Hoke Smith, newly elected Fulton County representative.

The Atlanta Constitution's Ralph McGill and Jack Tarver received scattered write-in votes—and in Decatur, a disgruntled voter wrote in "Joe Smith's house cat" as opponent for DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler.

DeKalb Hits Tax Plan on Homesteads

By GORDON SAWYER

DeKalb County, swamped by general election voters and ponderous methods of counting, indicated on the basis of its own vote the county would accept two of its proposed amendments, but reject the third.

With only one precinct missing, Amendment 16, which would provide a civil service system for county employees, was taking a handy "yes" vote. And 18, designed to allow the county to assess for streets and subdivisions with the okay of owners of 51 percent of the property, was barely becoming law.

But, 17, which would do away with Homestead Exemption in the county for school purposes only, was taking a sound beating. Returns from 28 of the 29 county precincts showed No. 17 was being voted out, 11,689 to 6,334.

Amendment 16 showed a lead of 12,931 for with 3,334 against. And 18 had 9,220 for votes, 7,713 against.

The suburban county bluntly rejected the amendment to extend the county unit system into the general election. The controversial Second Amendment went down by a vote of 4,019 for to 14,051 against.

Two men running for county school board without opposition were elected easily. Joseph L. Morris was named to the board from the Second District, and W. E. Cobb was elected from the Fourth.

George Gallup 'Eating Pheasant'

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—The Gallup poll people said Wednesday they were "eating pheasant instead of crow" because of their prediction the Republicans would gain seats in the House but the Democrats would "definitely keep control."

The American Institute of Public Opinion, as the poll is known, predicted Nov. 6 the nation would give the Democrats 51 percent and the Republicans 49 percent. The poll was confined to races for the House of Representatives. George W. Gallup heads the organization.

The Institute's reference to eating "crow" goes back to the Truman-Dewey presidential race when the poll and others predicted a Dewey victory.

Rhode Island is the nation's most densely populated state, with an average of 728 persons per square mile. Second is New Jersey, with 643 to the square mile.

Landslide Said Spur To Taft Race in '52

GOP Claims Labor's Defeat Can Be Made Nationwide

By A. BASKIN
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

CINCINNATI, Nov. 8—Associates of Sen. Robert A. Taft made no secret Wednesday of their belief that the Republican Senate leader had put himself out in front of the race for the party's 1952 presidential nomination by polling the biggest vote ever cast for a senatorial candidate in this State.

In the face of combined opposition from all branches of organized labor, the Truman Administration and the Democratic Party, the man whose hostility to New Deal policies has earned him the title "Mr. Republican" piled up a near-record plurality of 430,879 votes out of a statewide total of 2,898,000.

In the process Taft captured every major industrial stronghold of union labor from his Democratic rival, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson. The Cleveland area, where labor had hoped to pile up a lead of 150,000 for Ferguson, gave the co-author of the Taft-Hartley Law a margin of 42,298 votes. Taft was almost equally successful in such steel, rubber and manufacturing centers as Akron, Youngstown, Dayton, Toledo and Canton.

The total Taft vote of 1,642,537 exceeded by 40,000 votes the total cast in 1940 for Sen. Harold Burton, the previous high for a senatorial candidate in Ohio.

Taft spokesmen said they saw no reason why the campaign organization and policies that had triumphed in Ohio cities over all the forces of organized labor and the Fair Deal could not be utilized with the same success in Taft's behalf in a presidential contest among industrial workers in Detroit, Pittsburgh or Chicago.

The Taft vote was the more remarkable because it was accompanied by a Democratic victory in the Ohio gubernatorial race. Gov. Frank A. Lausche, who had refused to run for the Senate against Taft and who had remained neutral in his contest with Ferguson, was re-elected Governor by a margin of 146,152 votes. The Lausche victory was entirely attributable to his strong showing in Cleveland, where he ran 159,830 votes ahead of his Republican opponent, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright.

The Republicans won 15 of the State's 23 Congress seats, compared with the 11 they now hold.

In a formal statement, Sen. Taft described his landslide victory as unquestionable evidence that "the labor union bosses do not control the votes of their own members, and that a campaign based only upon a labor union appeal invites opposition and defeat."

"The people of Ohio," Taft asserted, "have declared their belief in progress in industry, agriculture, health and welfare, under a system based on continued liberty of the individual and liberty of the local community.

"They have rejected President Truman's program for imposing a socialistic planned economy on the American people and expressed their lack of confidence in his foreign policy and the State Department."

Election Wins Charity $20,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—A Brooklyn manufacturer who bet the New York Daily News $10,000 that its pre-election poll was wrong paid off Wednesday—and contributed an extra $10,000 to charity.

The $10,000 winnings of the News will go to charity also.

The cheerful loser was Lester Martin, President of the Consolidated Textile Company.

He said he had decided to pay the extra $10,000 "just because this is a great country and we're all good sports."

GOP Cut In Europe Aid Feared

LONDON, Nov. 8—(U.P.)—Western European statesmen read the American returns with greatest anxiety Wednesday and many feared that President Truman's foreign policies—especially his aid program—might be hamstrung.

There were suggestions that, because of the Republican gains, the President might be compelled to trim his Marshall Plan and arms aid appropriations—and possibly put Secretary of State Acheson out of the cabinet in time.

Western European governments were fully aware of the precariousness of the Democratic majorities in Congress. Nearly every one of them is plagued by a "paper majority" instead of a real majority in parliament.

Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard described the results as a "serious setback" for President Truman, and the liberal afternoon London Star said President Truman's "Fair Deal" policy at home and his aid program have received "a severe check."

Le Monde of Paris worried lest the President be forced to remove Secretary Acheson.

The middle-of-the-road Paris Presse forecast stronger Republican demands for aid cuts, predicted that Acheson would find himself in a "delicate" position and said that Mr. Truman undoubtedly would have to "put his Fair Deal in the garage until 1952."

The independent Rundschau of Frankfurt, in Western Germany, said the Republicans might compel the President to turn his attention to the Far East and make Europe "problem No. 2."

Martin Recounts Marines' Trial

A grimly realistic account of what happened to 13 young Americans, thrown together as members of a Marine combat squad fighting in the frontlines of the Korean War, is told by Harold Martin, Constitution columnist, in the Nov. 11 issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Entitled "The Ordeal of Marine Squad 2," the article traces the squad—picked at random—for a documentary film—from its formation in the States through its baptism of fire in Korea and its biggest fight.

PAC Chief Says Labor Undefeated

Sees 'Insecurity' As GOP Aid

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—One of organized labor's political spokesmen traced the election results Wednesday to the global crisis.

Admitting heavy losses but not disaster, Jack Kroll, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, said the vote reflected "a feeling of insecurity and uncertainty on the part of the American people resulting from the complex situation in which we are now engaged as a result of Communist aggression in the Far East and threatened aggression elsewhere in the world."

Labor's efforts were not wholly in vain, Kroll contended, because in previous elections when the presidency was not at stake the Democrats' congressional losses were even greater than they were Tuesday. Labor, he said, helped to avoid the "disastrous" results of 1946, for instance, when its foes won control of both the House and Senate.

Kroll, in a prepared statement, said "the people are concerned over the possibility of world-wide conflict with its hardships in terms of casualties and in terms of shortages, increased taxes, and other sacrifices.

"I hope it will not be misunderstood by the democratic nations abroad as an unwillingness to assist them in resisting Communist aggressio nand I hope it will not be used by the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition as a lever to force the withdrawal of the United States into isolationism. That would be a tragic twisting of the election results. . . ."

Despite greater harmony in the labor movement than ever before, a million dollar campaign chest, and apparently better organization and harder work, the union chieftains suffered a stunning reversal. The country-wide trend swept from office many of their best friends in Congress, including the chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, Sen. Elbert Thomas of Utah.

In line to succeed Thomas is Sen. James Murray of Montana, outspoken labor union advocate who was not a candidate this year.

The labor leaders found their major satisfaction in the defeat of Sen. Forrest C. Donnell, Republican of Missouri, the No. 2 target.

On the House side, the results of "marginal" contests showed the measure of Labor's losses. In 149 districts where the CIO-PAC gave itself a chance to influence the outcome, the results were as follows: Ninety-two labor-backed candidates lost, 51 won, and six contests were in doubt.

Tenant Wins $225 Rent Refund

Federal Judge Frank Hooper, Wednesday, ordered landlords, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bennett, of 622 Brookline St., S. W., to make a rent refund of $225 to a former tenant listed as Miss Clara D. McLeod.

In a separate ruling, Judge Hooper declared Mrs. S. F. Roberts, of 537 Ashby St., S. W., violated the Housing and Rent Act of 1947 by charging Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Whitehead $50 during the month of September, 1950, for a housing accommodation with a ceiling of $20 per month.

Senate Group To Probe Ohio Race Expense

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—The Senate Subcommittee on Elections and Privileges will delve into campaign spending in Ohio in connection with a planned broadened inquiry into election expenditures.

This facet of the enlarged investigation, it was learned Wednesday, will be undertaken on the basis of a complaint filed 12 days ago by Joseph T. Ferguson, Democratic candidate for the Senate in Ohio. Ferguson maintained that "colossal expenditures" had been made in the effort to reelect Sen. Taft.

Winner by more than 400,000 votes, Taft branded the complaint as ridiculous when it was made. Ferguson, who enjoyed united labor support, charged in closing-campaign speeches that $4,000,000 had been spent on the Taft campaign.

Investigators for the subcommittee, it was learned also, are still in Pennsylvania checking up on complaints said to cover "a vast field of alleged corruption in the handling of election machinery in the Philadelphia area and Luzerne County."

These charges were filed by a group of Democrats who said they feared "strong-arm methods" would be used at the polls in the senatorial election. In this contest, Sen. Francis J. Myers, a Democrat, bowed by 125,000 votes to Gov. James H. Duff who had captured his party's nomination in a bitter primary fight.

Seen in the kitchen of their new home are Trolley Operator C. D. Bishop, his wife, Mary, and their two daughters, Glenda, age six, and Gloria, one and a half.

Carnegie Hero Medal Winner C. D. Bishop Is Daily Hero In The Eyes Of His Family

On a cold, wintry day in January, 1948, Operator C. D. Bishop slowed down his trackless trolley to give an 18 year-old student, running across nearby railroad tracks, time to make it. But the boy fell across the tracks and did not get up.

Alert Mr. Bishop stopped his trolley, dashed out and snatched the young man from the path of an onrushing train, saving his life.

As a result of his courage and utter disregard for his own safety, Mr. Bishop received nationwide acclaim. A $50 savings bond and $225 watch from Jimmy Fidler came in recognition of the feat. His company presented him with a $500 savings bond at a special dinner in his honor. And the Carnegie Fund commission awarded him the coveted Carnegie Hero Medal and a $500 cash award to be applied to the purchase of a home.

Last April the Bishops moved into their beautiful new home at 255 West John Wesley in College Park. In the eyes of his attractive wife, Mary, and his two young daughters, Glenda and Gloria, Mr. Bishop is always a hero, but more because of his role as a good husband, father and bread-winner than for his life-saving deed.

In May, 1946, after serving 38 months in the Army, Mr. Bishop decided not to return to dairy farming, in which he was engaged for two years with his father in old Campbell County, following his graduation from high school. Instead, he joined the transit system on the recommendation of his brother, Operator W. C. Bishop.

"And I'm glad I did," says C. D. Bishop, "Because there's always a day's work waiting, regardless of the weather. I like it just fine."

The Bishops are members of the Methodist Church and Mr. Bishop belongs to the College Park Masonic Lodge and American Legion Post No. 228 in Fairburn.

ALERTNESS is one mark of a good Operator. While few ever have the chance to show their alertness in as dramatic a way as did Mr. Bishop, all of the Atlanta Transit Company's 870 operators strive "to keep on their toes."

DEMOCRAT STOPS OVER HERE

Author Bromfield Hails Election News

Louis Bromfield, author, lecturer, farmer and independent-voting Democrat, greeted the news of Republican victories across the nation here Wednesday as "the best thing that could have happened for our country."

Avidly reading election news during a stopover at the Atlanta airport, the big, famous, ruddy-faced author exulted:

"It's great . . . wonderful . . . terrific!"

Bromfield, who admits a "passion for politics," predicted:

"Southern Democrats and Republicans will run Congress."

He further predicted:

"Eisenhower will accept the Republican nomination in 1952—and he will be elected."

He interpreted election returns as showing the people "don't want a damn bit of the Brannan Plan, organized labor or socialized medicine."

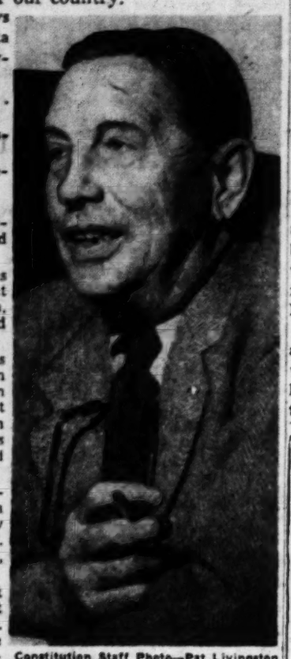

Wearing scuffed cowboy boots and a broad-brimmed Western hat, Bromfield was en route from one of his farms in Texas to visit some of his "horse friends" in Kentucky before returning to his Malabar Farm near Mansfield Ohio.

Author of some 27 books including "The Rains Came" and "Green Bay Tree," Bromfield said he now is working on a novel, "Mr. Smith," and a musical show, "Helen in Memphis."

He said the musical—about Helen of Troy in Memphis, Egypt—was scheduled for Broadway. He is collaborating with a couple of composers who agree their efforts are "fun—but hard work."

Bromfield's capsule advice to would-be authors is simply, "Read the classics—and write!"

In Atlanta for the first time in five years, Bromfield regretted he was unable to see his old friend, Channing Cope, Constitution farm columnist. He said he hoped to return here before another five years—and if he does, he said Yellow River Farm would be on his sight-seeing list.

TV Stars Juliet In Panties and Bra

By PAUL JONES

The teevee camera panned to the left when it should have panned to the right.

There in her lace panties and bra stood the heroine of "Romeo and Juliet." . . . She was tugging at her girdle, completely unaware she was dressing right before the eyes of at least 10,000,000 people who were watching the play on TV.

This faux pas took place several weeks ago on a big time dramatic show. . . . It probably is the most serious miscue committed on the living room theater. But, it was not extraordinary. . . . Embarrassing situations such as this happen almost daily and will continue to happen until teevee has a few more years' experience under its belt.

Marsha Hunt

Marsha Hunt, who has starred in numerous TV shows, told us about the above incident when she arrived for her Penthouse debut in "Laura."

"The play had been narrowed from two hours to a mere 60 minutes. . . . Actresses didn't have time to go off stage to change costume, they just disrobed down to panties and bra on stage—out of range of the camera. . . . In one scene in another drama, the camera panned me to a door and just waited at the door until I had made a complete wardrobe change. . . . It must have taken me 60 seconds."

Guy Kibbee, grand old character actor, was doing a stint on Hollywood Screen Test when the cameraman caught him with his false teeth out—he was giving his mouth a rest. . . . He made no attempt to restore them, but ad libbed his way out of the scene.

Bungled commercial plugs have forced many sponsors to resort to film; but on the first Bert Parks Show, the film was run off backwards and commentary by an announcer which was supposed to tie in with objects on the screen backfired terribly.

Dagmar - ism: Cyrano De Razor Back. . . . The blonde dead pan glamazon of the Broadway Open House, has a million of 'em as Jimmy Durante would say at the slightest provocation. . . . Catch her at 11 Thursday night on WSB-TV.

Millions are Delighted because Ranson Sherman is back on TV (3:15 p. m. on WSB-TV) with his fix-it hints. . . . His "how to spend a fortune wisely" stunt the other day was a howl. . . . We recommend "Big Town" which presents Thursday night "The "Outsider" at 9:30 on WAGA-TV. . . . This package drama is expertly done with Pat McVey and Mary K. Wells playing Steve and Loreili parts. . . . Dane Clark stars in "I Won't Be a Minute," a mystery, on Airflyte Theater at 10:30, same station.

Live and Choice—On WSB-TV: Come Into Kitchen, 11; Strictly for Girls, 1; Rich's In Home, 2; Ranson Sherman, 3:15—and get a load of this one: "Audience Participation Show, a newcomer, at 3:30; Woody Willow, 4:30; Howdy Doody, 5:30; Kukla, 7; Broadway Open House, 11. . . . And, on WAGA-TV. . . . Garry Moore, 1:30; Robert Q. Lewis, 2:30; Burns, Allen, 8; R. Q. Lewis, 8:30; Alan Young, 9; Big Town, 9:30; Truth Or Consequences, 10; Airflyte Theater, 10:30.

Gen. Mark Clark will be featured on We The People in discussion of international situation at 9:30 on WSB-NBC (radio).

Your Stars Today

Sun in Scorpio

General Tendencies.—With a strong influence in the sign of Scorpio today, such things as insurance, legacies, the income from partnership and matters which concern the medical profession and law are all stipulated. Of course, this is a highly practical and serious trend, not much time being given to lighter affairs until the end of the week. A word of caution about fast driving or any dangerous occupations; the coming week looks bad for those who are careless.

If It's Your Birthday.—Beginning with your birthday today, you can make a good deal out of your next year if you follow matter-of-fact principles and stick to one definite line of work. Your money matters seem due for an advance shortly after the turn of the new year, but can not be depended upon when Summer begins. Perhaps you should take advantage of present offers and then sit tight for at least two years before making further changes, this applying to both business and pleasure.

Irate Voter Casts Ballot

VALDOSTA, Nov. 8—(AP)—T. N. Holcombe Sr., election worker, reports a disgruntled citizen in the Valdosta precinct.

This one voted against every item on the ballot, and up in the "independent" section he wrote: "I am also against any such damned ballot as this."

You Take No Risk When You Take BQR For Cold Symptoms

BQR Gives Relief With No Drowsiness or Bad After Effects, Now At All Dealers.

Here is the answer to the problem of relief for those symptoms often associated with bad colds. If you feel a cold coming on, or even if the cold has developed, you may expect prompt relief from cold symptoms by using BQR. All dealers now have BQR in stock. Ask your dealer for BQR, use as directed for bad cold symptoms and be assured of no ill after effects, but rather a more or less improved systemic condition generally. (adv.)

He repeated assurances that Communist China's frontier would be respected.

Following the vote to invite the Chinese Communists, Council President Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia adjourned the meeting—but only after a sharp Soviet-American exchange.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik insisted, however, that the Council could not discuss the MacArthur report until the Peking envoys are present. And he repeated charges that the report was "one-sized and tendentious" and came from the commander of "United States interventionist troops in Korea."

nan youth and joined the Baptist Church.

A year ago, her husband disappeared.

"I could get a job in a beer joint," she cried, "but I do not want that. I finally get a job myself as housekeeper in Atlanta and for six months I am all right. Then they tell me they can keep me no longer.

"My clothes are sitting in an alley. That's why I cry when the detectives see me walking along Peachtree Street."

Of the Peachtree Street "wolves" frightened off by the detectives, she said lightly: "Just men for you. They shove you around and then they go 'way. They tell you what to eat and what to wear."

Through the efforts of Mrs. O'Quinn and Miss Lykes, she obtained a temporary home and the promise of a job in an orphanage.

"This will be nice," she smiled. "I like children — you can love them. They do not try to shove you around."

READING FROM EAST TO WEST, TWO HAPPY PEOPLE—John M. Butler, left, wearily, but happily, contemplates the fact he'll be the first Republican Maryland has sent to the Senate since 1926. Butler toppled Democratic stalwart, Sen. Millard Tydings. At right, Republican Rep. Richard Nixon congratulates himself in Los Angeles as he checks an election scoreboard in his Senate race with Democratic Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas. Mrs. Douglas Wednesday, 17 hours after the polls closed, conceded Nixon was the winner.

Senate mechanism as even a moderately effective Fair Deal force. The loss of Lucas in Illinois put him to the hard task of recommending, at least, a new Senate leader. From past information, it appeared that this new leader might be Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, of Arizona, a very nearly 100 percent Truman Democrat but so amiably quiet about it that he has been personally acceptable to the Southern Democrats as well as to his own side.

Lucas, it appeared from all that could be gathered after the event, was one of the chief victims of a foreign policy upon which, above all else, he had preferred to stand, thought he had not been conspicuously among those who had made that policy.

His defeat by former Representative Everett Dirksen, who had the support of the "nationalist" forces headed by Col. Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, seemed to point up the strange sectional movements of an election which was, in the last analysis, one of issues that worked both ways.

For the most surprising victory for the Democrats was in the East—that of Sen. Brien McMahon in Connecticut, who had persistently presented himself as one preoccupied with international affairs, as he had in fact been in Congress. McMahon won in Connecticut against all local political tradition of recent years.

The relative stability of the Democratic position in the East as against the grain country was again demonstrated in Pennsylvania, where the young Democratic incumbent Sen. Francis J. Myers, put the powerful Duff to the greatest exertions before falling at last.

Then, there was New York, where Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, a Democrat and also a Liberal Party member, survived handily, his vote against the McCarran anti-Communist bill notwithstanding, in a place of confused infighting where local issues, though very strong, tended at least to some extent to weaken each other.

Maryland, however, proved a soft spot in the Democratic second line of defense along the Eastern seaboard. There, Tydings, one of the most deeply entrenched members of the Senate, was ousted by a newcomer, John M. Butler, in a campaign that seemed to have turned about the Senate's investigation of the charges of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Republican, of Wisconsin, of Communist infiltration of the State Department.

However, as the scene shifted again, this time to California, the issue was less domestic. Rep. Richard M. Nixon easily picked up a Democratic Senate seat, from which Sen. Sheridan Downey had retired and which Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas tried to capture.

Mrs. Douglas, in days past, had been a vehement critic of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, on which Nixon served prominently in the investigation of Alger Hiss. She was accused, like Sen. Tydings, primarily of a "softness" to Communists.

UNIT PLAN

on it, the proposal didn't come into the larger counties with a sufficient margin to win. The vote in the larger counties mounted and overcame a lead which the unit plan had held for the first five hours of counting.

DeKalb County, with only one of its 29 precincts missing, was opposing the amendment by a vote of 14,051 to 4,019.

Cobb County voted 4,073 against the amendment to 1,798 for it.

Significant changes from earlier returns found Richmond County, six-unit home of Roy Harris, go against the amendment by a vote of 4,683 to 3,141 in 13 of 14 precincts. And rural, pro-Talmadge Washington County which was giving its earlier counts against the amendment, switched heavily in favor of it—1,142 to 449.

The stronghold of the Talmadge family, Telfair County, reported perhaps the strongest vote for the amendment. The count was 704 for and 14 against. Other big margins against the proposal came from Treutlen, home of State Highway Chairman James Gillis, and Glascock, and Long counties.

Fourteen rural two-unit counties most of them pro-Talmadge, gave their vote against the amendment. Seventeen of the 30 four-unit counties went against the amendment. Seven of the eight six-unit counties opposed it.

In the "big city" counties the vote was:

Bibb, 6,489 against and 2,467 for; Floyd, 3,632 against and 1,373 for; Muscogee, 4,559 against and 2,401 for, and Troup, 1,977 against and 687 for the amendment.

GOPs Ask Connecticut Recount

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 8—William Benton edged to a 1,484-vote victory Wednesday over Prescott Bush, his Republican rival in Tuesday's election, but Republican leaders said they would contest the result.

With Democratic control of the Senate hinging on the outcome of this race for a two-year seat, Connecticut Republicans went into a lengthy afternoon conference to decide what they would do. If Benton is elected, the Democrats control the Senate 49 to 47. If he loses, each party will hold 48 seats.

The Republican decision to contest the vote was announced by Clarence F. Baldwin, state party chairman.

ficials of the CWA-CIO were being meditated by Federal Conciliators, a reported 1,500 workers had left their jobs in New York, Denver, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Boston, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Los Angeles, and Louisville.

In Philadelphia, President John H. McNamee of CWA local 72, representing 500 Western Electric workers, declared "long distance service will be crippled as never before."

Tactics of the far-flung striking units seemed to differ. In Atlanta, union members planned "roving pickets" which will move from plant to plant every 24 hours, thereby crippling only segments of the Southern Bell system at a time.

But on the west coast, a union chief said he will attempt to deploy his slight union force to close 51 exchanges, offices, garages and warehouses in San Francisco alone.

Union is striking for a reported 15-cents-an-hour wage increase, travel pay, military leave of absence, local community holiday observance and several other minor demands. They have been in negotiations since Oct. 14, 1949.

Wingate Re-elected Farm Bureau Head

MACON, Nov. 8—(AP)—H. L. Wingate, prominent Pelham farmer, Wednesday was elected to serve as President of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation for his 11th term. He will begin his new term Dec. 1.

In addition to naming several other officers and a slate of directors, the FB members acted on a number of resolutions.

Three Vice Presidents were named. Floyd H. Tabor of Ft. Valley, and H. Young Tillman of Valdosta were re-elected for the Middle and South Georgia areas. S. J. Suddath of Jackson, was chosen to succeed W. M. Storey of Summerville, for the North Georgia area.

Farm Bureau directors were named to fill expiring terms. They are W. H. Smith, Jr., First District; Cove Dekle, Moultrie, Second; H. B. Wilson, Abbeville, and W. J. McKemie, Jr., Clay County, Third; Felton Hoyle, Thomaston, Fourth; G. S. Potts, Conyers, Fifth; Mell Tanner, Sandersville, Sixth; Sidney Lowery, Floyd County, and Benson Ellis, Gordon County, Seventh; A. S. Holland, Jesup, Eighth; A. L. Simonton, Winder, Ninth; W. E. Miss Kate Willingham was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation by the Board of Directors.

Among the resolutions adopted was one calling for a Federal guarantee price on cotton "not less than 40 cents per pound."

Resolutions in support of Federal aid for education with its administration on the State level, the examination of the ad valorem tax, the reduction of corporate taxes and a plan for the extension of livestock loans received approval by the convention.

The Farm Bureau went on record as advocating a bond issue, the funds to be used specifically on rural road construction and improvement and that the recently enacted additional one-cent-per-gallon tax on gasoline be used to retire the bonds.

The organization renewed its advocacy of the livestock sanitary board bill which was defeated in the last session of the Legislature.

Mrs. Joe S. Ray of West Green, was re-elected president of the women's auxiliary of the federation.

Clay tile work surfaces are now going into 19 per cent of the kitchens in new homes costing $6,000 or more.

GOP Election Gains Held Key To Greater Power for Dixie

By JOHN R. HENRY
International News Service Writer

Southern Democrats Thursday hailed Republican gains in the general election as a boost for Dixie's power in Congress.

The South followed tradition by returning its Democratic lawmakers to Washington.

Sen. Olin D. Johnston, Democrat, South Carolina, pointed out that this gives the South "a majority of the Democratic majority" in the Senate.

The party held control in the Senate by a margin of only 49 to 47. Of those 49, 26 are Southerners, mainly in opposition to many of the Adminstration's pet measures.

Sen. Johnston, reached at Florence, S. C., told International News Service the Dixie bloc "constitutes a good working majority." He said: "This certainly puts the South in good position so that Administration leaders will listen to us more attentively not only in regard to national affairs but also concerning party business."

Sen. Russell Long, Democrat, Louisiana, said the South was "more united in the Senate," with addition of freshmen Sens. Smathers, Democrat, Florida, and Smith, Democrat, North Carolina.

He pointed out that their predecessors, Sen. Pepper, Democrat, Florida, and Sen. Graham, Democrat, North Carolina, had not always "gone along" with their fellow Southerners.

Long, from his home at Baton Rouge, told INS:

"And, now, what the South does as far as the Adminstration is concerned depends on what the Administration does toward us."

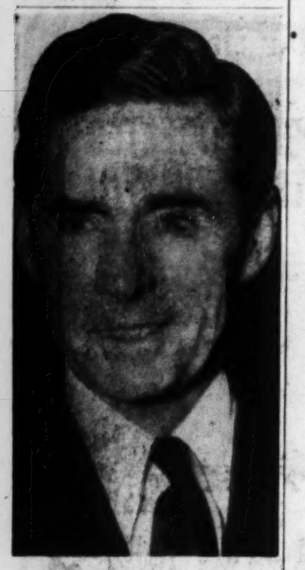

Sen. Johnston pointed out that the South's power in the House, while undiminished in strength, is not comparable to the Senate situation. He explained that the House delegations from Dixie are smaller than those from larger States in other sections.

Triumph of the Republicans in trimming Democratic majorities, meanwhile, was not calculated to help the cause of the States' Rights movement. Sen. Johnston predicted an "easing off" on the Administration's civil-rights program, adding:

"Our greatest fear all along on that score was from the Republicans, but, as long as we hold a balance, it isn't likely that such legislation will pass."

Sen. Long, in that connection, interpreted the election results as "putting the finishing touches on such things as the Brannan Farm Plan and the Ewing medical plan."

The States' Rights headquarters at Jackson, Miss., has been closed, but Spokesman Frank Mayerhoff said the group might be reactivated unless the Democratic leadership changed its civil-rights domestic policies.

Four States Turn Down Gambling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Proposals to legalize various forms of gambling received rough treatment from the voters of four States in Tuesday's election. So did liquor prohibition proposals in four States.

Montana, Oregon and West Virginia, meanwhile, ran up margins in favor of a bonus for World War II veterans.

California rejected by a top-heavy margin a referendum proposal to legalize gambling and place it under State control. Backers had estimated it would pour $300,000,000 a year into the State Treasury, earmarked for welfare purposes.

Massachusetts voters rejected a State lottery plan backed by a society for old age pensions, while running up a margin in favor of a $75-a-month minimum old-age assistance benefit payment the lottery was designed to finance.

Arizona voters rejected a proposal to legalize and control gambling, and turned down local option to invoke prohibition of liquor sales. They also defeated proposals for increased aid to the aged and for antisegregation measures in the schools.

Montana voted heavily against a proposal to legalize slot machines.

In Arkansas the voters turned in a big margin against proposed State-wide prohibition on manufacture, sale or transportation of liquor, and possession of more than a quart of liquor.

Oregon defeated a proposal to ban the sale of promotively advertised liquor. A proposal to forbid the serving of liquor and food in the same place trailed in South Dakota.

A strict State antisubersives law, the Ober Act, was retained by Maryland voters by a wide margin. Michigan, meanwhile, gave overwhelming approval to a constitutional amendment to outlaw subversive activity.

Get Good Candidates, But Just Can't Win

WOODSTOCK, Conn., Nov. 8—(AP)—Democrats of this town have maintained their record of never having won an election.

Although they presented two of the most prominent candidates for representative in the state, their nominees were defeated Tuesday by sizable margins.

Losers were Dr. Hamilton Holt, retired president of Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., and Dr. William Lonsdale Tayler, head of the Department of Political Economy at Dickinson College in Pennsylvania.

Winners were J. Dean Spencer and William C. Childs.

Cuban Police Jail 150 in Red Roundup

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 8—(AP)—Cuban police staged the largest roundup of Communists in the country's history Tuesday night in a raid on a "peace" meeting. More than 150 Reds and sympathizers were jailed.

Vincente Lombardo Toledano, leftist Mexican labor leader and party of Latin Americans about to leave for a Communist-sponsored Peace Congress in Sheffield, England, were arrested at Rancho Boyeros Airport near the capital. The conference is to open Nov. 13.

Arrested with Lombardo Toledano were 10 other members of his delegation, including his wife, former Navy Minister Heriberto Jara, Sen. Juan Elizando, and Peasant Leader Arturo Orana. Rodolfo Guzman, a Costa Rican, and Plamode Borsari, a Brazilian engineer, also were arrested at the airport.

Police also blitzed a meeting of about 400 Communist sympathizers in a theater that had been called as a send-off for the Mexican and Cuban delegations to the Sheffield conference.

The demonstrators arrested at the meeting were placed in Havana's Vivac Prison, charged with violating a decree banning subversive activities and acts against the stability of the Republic.

Cuban Communist Leaders Juan Marinello and Lazaro Pena were taken into custody, but later freed because they were not inside the theater at the time of the raid.

GOP Trend Caused Upset, Tydings Says

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Nov. 8—(AP)—Sen. Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, said Wednesday "a pretty big Republican trend running throughout the country" apparently beat him in Tuesday's election.

"I can't explain the defeat, I suppose," Tydings said. "When the Governor went down, it was hard for other Democratic candidates in the state to hold up.

"I think a combination of many things beat me. The national administration was not popular. The Korean war. The smear campaign used against me.

"I have no future plans at the moment. For a while I am simply going to rest."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1950.

DORIS LOCKERMAN, Associate Editor

Clearly, the People Said 'No!'

The free ballot has won a notable victory in Georgia.

Defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment to extend the county unit system to the general elections means Georgians do not want an all-powerful State political machine. They want their judges and sheriffs and county school superintendents elected by the people. They do not want them as mere pawns of a machine with headquarters in Atlanta.

The surprising note of the unit system's defeat was the high proportion of rural counties, normally in the Talmadge stronghold, which voted heavily against it. Obviously, voters of these counties did not believe the administration's fantastic charges that they are in danger of coming under the thumbs of the "big cities." They were not fooled. Rural counties now control the Democratic primary, which remains under the county unit system. Nomination in the primary is equivalent to election. If there were not a conspiracy to do away with the primary, as was charged by a Talmadge stalwart, why was the administration so anxious to move the unit system into the general election? In an honest answer to that question a great many rural counties voted against the amendment.

Is it not strange that the amendment was carried in Chatham County and that it almost carried in Richmond County, both of which have six unit votes and which are Georgia's only two machine counties?

Georgia also has left the way open for establishment of a State Republican party. Had the proposed No. 2 amendment passed a strong opposition party would have been virtually impossible, at least for a great many years to come. This newspaper, though Democratic, firmly believes in the two-party system. The State would benefit from two vigorous parties.

Broadening the unit system now is a dead issue. It was an artificial one from the beginning, proposed solely for the purpose of enabling a State machine to reach into every county and demand unquestioned obedience of officeholders. The people clearly have said they will have none of that.

The Democratic convention of last Summer went on record as favoring strengthening the county unit system. The only way to strengthen the system is to reapportion it so as to provide a more equitable distribution of strength. Else it will inevitably fall of its own weight.

Improvement Plan Gets the Green Light

Indorsement of the Plan of Improvement amendments in Tuesday's election is the go-ahead signal for a greater metropolitan area.

It means more efficient government. Costly duplication of functions by the City and County will be eliminated. Eventually, taxes ought to be less. In general, the plan calls for the city to provide the services normally provided by cities in Georgia and the county those ordinarily provided by counties.

It is the second time voters have approved the plan. The vote was overwhelmingly favorable in the referendum last June.

These votes are a double mandate from the people. Fulton County representatives in the General Assembly have announced they will offer the necessary legislation at the January session.

Let there be no undercover opposition. Certain of the County Commissioners, fearing a reduction of their own political power, have worked long and hard against the plan. They ought now to admit defeat and assist in getting the Plan of Improvement in operation.

GOP Gains Curb Fair Deal

Republican gains in the elections eliminate President Truman's Fair Deal program as an issue for the next two years at least.

The new Congress will be predominately conservative, both in domestic policies and foreign relations. But it will not be isolationist.

Sen. Walter George believes the vote, which saw stalwart supporters of the President go down in defeat, will have a steadying effect upon the nation's economy. That was evidenced yesterday when the stock market took a sharp upturn on the election news.

Sen. Taft's smashing victory will curtail the political influence of organized labor. There will be no serious effort to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act. Because of his coauthorship of this law, Taft was the prime object of the most intensive political campaign ever staged by union labor in this country. A great deal of money was spent and months of doorbell ringing and precinct organizing went into the effort. But Sen. Taft came up with a majority that surprised even his closest supporters. Mr. Republican himself upset all predictions almost as much as did Mr. Truman in 1948.

In Sen. Taft's case, at least, the vote-getting power of organized labor was vastly overrated. The Senator won some heavily industrialized areas, indicating a great many rank and file union members listened patiently to their leaders denounce Taft and then went out and voted for him.

Defeat of Sen. Tydings, of Maryland, a veteran of 24 years in the Senate and chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, hinged almost solely on the Communism-in-Government issue. His victorious opponent, a political unknown named John M. Butler, charged Tydings with whitewashing the McCarthy charges.

The Communism issue also predominated in California, where Rep. Richard M. Nixon, Republican, defeated Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat, for the Senate seat vacated by Sheridan Downey. Nixon made capital out of the fact that he was instrumental in bringing charges against Alger Hiss.

Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, Senate majority leader, lost to Everett Dirksen, Republican, chiefly because the Democratic candidate for Cook County Sheriff was a highly controversial figure.

From the standpoint of numbers, the Republican gains were not so great. It was the caliber of the Democratic figures who were knocked off that will hurt the party and the President most. The line-up in the Senate now appears to be 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans. A recount in the Connecticut election, where Sen. Benton won by a hair's breadth, conceivably could even things up.

Republicans also made considerable headway in the House, though the Democrats will continue to control it by a fairly comfortable margin.

But the Brannan Farm Plan, compulsory health insurance, FEPC and other Truman Fair Deal proposals are out for the next two years. The Republicans have succeeded in electing enough Senators and Representatives to block controversial legislation but Democrats still must answer for any shortcomings.

Home Rule Would Shorten the Ballot

For the most part, irregularities in Tuesday's election were the combined result of the tremendous size of the ballot and the comparatively large turnout of voters.

There were, however, several instances of law violation that ought to be investigated. For example, there were reports that a ballot was tacked onto the bulletin board of the courthouse at Americus and voters offered instruction on how to vote for extension of the county unit system.

In some places counting of the votes started before the polls were closed. That is a frequent offense in Georgia.

But in general the violations were technical rather than corrupt in nature. Voters sat side by side on benches and marked their ballots. Some stood up and marked them on the wall in plain view of everybody at the polling place.

Because the ballot was so bulky, ballot boxes were filled long before closing time and election officials were faced with the necessity of providing space for incoming votes. Some emptied the votes into flour sacks. Others opened the ballot box and packed the votes down. In only a few cases were additional boxes available.

But these measures in the main were expedients forced upon election officials by the large number of voters and an outsized ballot containing 37 proposed constitutional amendments, most of them of purely local application. It is easy to say in retrospect that provisions should have been made for both—as indeed it was made in Augusta. In Georgia, though, the general election normally assumes little importance and ballot boxes end up less than a third full.

Constitution staff writers touring voting places in rural areas reported more resentment against the huge ballot than against technical irregularities. People were incensed particularly at the obvious great cost of the ballot. It was a monstrosity.

The remedy is, of course, home rule. Without the large number of local Constitutional amendments, the ballot would have been smaller and less expensive and voting would have been more rapid and less confused.

If the people really are aroused over the situation, they can instruct their representatives in the General Assembly to provide home rule.

Brightest Star Of Election Sky

The most universally gratifying aspect of the election was the defeat of Rep. Vito Marcantonio, of New York. Rep. Marcantonio was listed as a member of the American Labor Party, but his votes in Congress almost invariably followed the Communist line.

Democrats and Republicans were equally against Marcantonio. In fact, candidates of both parties took delight in comparing their opponent's votes with his.

In the end it took a combined effort to end Marcantonio's 14-year reign. His successful opponent, James G. Donovan, was the candidate of the Democratic, Republican and Liberal Parties.

It was a job well done.

The Fair Deal Has Been Dealt

The election being over, about the only political activity going on yesterday was Republicans pinching each other to make sure it was true.

As I analyze the thing, Dr. Gallup was just two years ahead of his time.

In the House, of course, the administration will continue to have a majority, but only when the trade winds are blowing toward the South.

Is it any wonder one gets the impression that the FAIR DEAL has been dealt?

As for the new Senate, it will be so evenly divided that a Democrat won't dare leave the floor even for a drink of water unless he can locate a thirsty Republican.

Technically, the Democrats will retain control of Congress. But only for blame-placing purposes.

This is as the Republicans want it. Remembering 1946 and the 80th Congress, they have adopted the slogan: "He who legislates is lost."

The Old Guard dies but never surrenders. Taft ran so well in Ohio there is already talk of nominating Hartley as his '52 running mate.

Poor Harry Truman. The Puerto Ricans missed him. But the pendulum didn't.

The Good and the Bad

In The Jones County News

On occasion, men of the journalistic world feel that they must have a word in opposition to some wrong that they note, as well as a speaking out in support and commendation of another good action.

It is with a hope of expressing one man's considered opinion on a problem that the following questions are posed.

Some Questions Why don't some of the large Northern magazines take time and effort to make a decent investigation of the South's problems before using various comments and pictures and articles to support their one-sided stand on our modern way of life? Southerners regard these publications' policy as essentially unfair. We have no kick with them regarding their Republican politics, but we do feel that their views expressed concerning the South are not wholly unbiased and fair.

Hodding Carter, a big-minded small towner in Mississippi, seems to hit the heights frequently in striving to enlighten Americans on the South's problems and reasonable solutions to them. Would it not be well for some of these publications to look to the facts and fairness of the thing and periodically carry guest comments, such as those of Hodding Carter, in place of the "Tobacco Road" viewpoint they have expounded?

Another Angle Then there's another angle. A few ill-advised Southerners, Georgians, have added fuel to the fire by consistently condemning the newspapers of the State and inciting controversy by their narrow-minded comments and activities.

How can those Georgians who are constantly railing out against the press of Georgia look the small county weeklies in the face and continue to carry on with their unfair attacks on the press?

They have not succeeded in making it clear IF they are including the little "one-man" weeklies when they condemn the newspapers so vehemently.

Thinking citizens generally agree that the little weeklies are trying to speak out for what they think is BEST—not just wholeheartedly taking up the ax against one man or one group.

A Hope We hope the governing powers of our good State can see fit to give heed to what the fair-minded newspapers of Georgia are trying to say and do and, subsequently, attempt to "clean house" and streamline our government into a hard-working sincere program.

We are not all thoroughly "checked out" on what is behind the scenes in the governing faction's stew with the large dailies, but we do know that there are some high-type intellectual men on the staffs of the newspapers and in politics. Then, it would seem that they could get together on a fair give-and-take basis and reach some harmonious understanding, in order that we might make the great progress we wish to.

Bob Elliott's unnecessary attack on the "scalawag press" really touched off the fight. Many feel that there was no justification whatever for that scathing and that there is no "scalawag press" in Georgia. Be that as it may, the participants in the vicious attacks do not seem to be taking time to back up their words with clear, constructive thinking.

Let us hope that Government officials will take to heart some of the constructive criticism and set to on the job of revamping our inadequate governmental program, putting it on a sound, workable footing.

BOB CONSIDINE

Look for a Change

NEW YORK—Look upon the invasion of North Korea by Chinese Reds as a signal for another violent about-face in Secretary Dean Acheson's Far East policy.

A source close to the Secretary predicts that in the very near future he will declare vigorously that his Government will have no truck with anything Communistic in Asia; that we will turn definite thumbs down on Red China's application for UN membership; and that we (belatedly) agree with Douglas MacArthur that Formosa is worth keeping in the pattern of our Pacific defenses.

There was unquestionably a clique around Acheson which was trying to find ways and means of recognizing Mao's control over close to half a billion Chinese. During the Summer portion of the Korean War, when our forces most surely would have been driven off the peninsula if the Chinese Reds had come in, the State Department bent so far over backward, trying not to ruffle Mao, that it prompted Mr. Truman's public spanking of MacArthur.

But now it has reluctantly come around to his thinking and policy change No. 2,173 is in the works.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all lett ers to The Editors, Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

'Charitable Publicity'

The Editors: This is to express appreciation to you for the charitable publicity given by your much-loved paper to "the 'Voice of God'"—the evangelist Billy Graham who is in Atlanta, and who is reaching out throughout the State through the newspapers, and various ways, calling us in desperate love to the better ways of life.

Atlanta. WILMA GRANT.

'Who Is Your God?'

The Editors: Your god is the thing you most value in life.

With some folks it is the love of money. Many are in love with themselves. There are, however, a few people we feel in this world who have the same God as we do. Some of these people I shall mention here.

Celestine Sibley's Grady Hospital nurse whom she named Florence seems to be foremost in mind at present. How Florence gave of her time beyond the call of duty after being told by Grady's cancer experts that she had only a short while to live seems to tell our very soul that Florence was serving my God, our God.

Only recently and in our very midst William M. (Bill) Parker was slain while doing the duties of secretary of our YMCA. He made tremendous strides in his youth work. He was a steward in the First Methodist Church and was a dynamic force in civic activities, constantly working beyond the call of duty for the betterment of Atlanta. Such a person we feel sure had chosen the right God.

We reconcile ourselves to believe our God is the only God. We look upon our fellow man and say, "Alas, poor soul, you should be serving my God, for my God is the only God."

Do you have the right god? Take an inventory and find out. Maybe you would like to change gods before it is too late. So stop long enough, no matter what you are doing and take inventory of yourself. In this way it is possible to find the right god. Who is your god?

Atlanta. ROBERT L. HENRY, SR.

Friend to Man

The Editors: What happened to us in Moultrie is worthy of note.

A group of colored football players and students from the Lowndes County Training School, Valdosta, were on their way to play the Moultrie Colored High School.

Three miles from Moultrie we had two flat tires on our bus. It was then just 20 minutes before the game. For our relief Mr. Smith, the proprietor of Kingwood Grocery, called the city bus and got us on for the game.

All the service stations had closed and no service was available. But Mr. Smith called every station in Moultrie until he finally got a Mr. Horne to come and get the tires and mend them. When the game was over Mr. Parker, the principal, carried me back out to the bus and it was ready.

In behalf of this school I want the general public to know what courteous and fine service we received in Moultrie, and to express our gratitude to Mr. Smith and Mr. Horne for their service. Because of the pigmentation of our skin there could not have been any mistaken identity. No, it was that human touch manifested by Mr. Smith. Happy am I to report such an incident. Happy are we, we can live together and render such unselfish service to each other.

This group will always appreciate and remember Moultrie and its fine citizens.

It happened in Georgia.

Return Engagement

'Eastern Armies'

The Editors: I must take issue with Mr. Ralph McGill in his editorial, "Will Iran Be Next?"

Mr. McGill is wrong in regard to Persia being the oldest of the ancient empires. Scripture shows and history confirms the fact that Persia was the last of the four great Asiatic empires to arise. Persia never extended to the region now known as Iran until later years of conquest under the Medes and Persians, by Darius and Cyrus.

Because of Persia's geographical location, Iran could never have been a part of it except, as stated, though later conquest.

As for Mr. McGill's doubt as to whether Russia will invade Iran, I would prefer that he accept the last prophecy for world conquest, as Christ gave it to John on Patmos: "And the sixth angel poured out his vial (of God's wrath) upon the river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared (for Armageddon)."—Revelation 16:12.

And the "kings of the east" can mean two separate groups. But I think that the meaning here is both groups. In ancient times the people along and especially north of the Euphrates were known as the people of the East. So that, as the pagan armies sweep toward the Euphrates from the eastern lands, they could be joined by the nations along the Euphrates, including Iran. These Eastern armies, according to prophecy, will overflows and pass over (the nations). Prophecy never fails. It is God's Word. Take it from there and tremble. The third and last phase of Armageddon is on the way. How long it will take the Eastern armies to reach the climax, only time will tell.

JOHN MARVIN RAST

"He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone." (Psalms 91:11, 12.)

Man, says the author of a recently published book, "rises from dust to divinity."

That is the direction that man may take but it is not the process. Man doesn't ascend like a balloon.

To rise from dust to divinity he must yield to a lifting power.

More than that, he must invite and cultivate that power—fellowship with Him who said: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

The call is ever away from blind conformity to the world to inner transformation of thought and will after the manner of Christ.

For the assurance of Thy sustaining presence, O God, we praise Thee. Keep us this day trustful, triumphant.

HAROLD MARTIN

Is the Bomb the Only Answer?

Along with many another pseudo expert—and many a professional military man, too, I guessed wrong—badly wrong, on the Korean war. When the Reds from China did not come in to help in the North Koreans' last great drive in early September, I thought that Stalin was going to let the Korean adventure go by default, chop off a few heads of the bad advisors who told him we would not fight for Korea, and turn his attention to harassing us somewhere else. Just a few thousand trained Red Chinese soldiers, well armed with Soviet weapons, a few hundred Soviet jet airplanes, flown by good pilots, could have driven us from the peninsula in those last few days before we made our great smash at Inchon. Like everybody else, I guess, I breathed more freely when, in the first few weeks of the encircling assault that put our troops in strength far beyond the boundary of the 38th parallel, I figured the whole thing was wrapped up and done with. At the cost of some 20,000 casualties and untold treasure we had secured the military victory.

All that remained was to secure the political victory—placing in Korea a supervising force, preferably of Orientals, who would see to it that war should not break out afresh.

The developments of the past few days have proved that all of us who felt that way—and that includes General MacArthur—were indulging in a wistful pipe dream. We might as well face the facts now. We are at war with Red China. We must make, in a very few days, one of the great decisions of our history.

We must decide whether or not we are going to fight China on China's terms, in the hills and valleys of North Korea. If we make that decision, there is no limit to the years we may be at war, no limit to the drain on our resources in manpower and in money—a bloodletting and a despoiling that can be inflicted upon us while Russia herself sheds not one drop of Russian blood, nor spends any more money than is required to keep arms and munitions flowing to her satellites.

If we fight China in Korea there is no way to stop the war there. There is no way we can gain victory without going on in pursuit, into Manchuria, into China herself, right to the borders of Red China. And if we follow that course, we will eventually face, as a final enemy, the great land armies and the massive tank battalions of the Russians themselves.

If we choose to fight the limitless hosts of Chinese, what then shall we do about Western Europe? Is this not a trap carefully set for us by the Reds, luring us to commit all our strength—as we have already done, to the battle in Korea—so that the Red legions beyond the Elbe can march to the English Channel, opposed only by the feeble forces of our friends across the Atlantic, forces which at their present strength could not stand up to the Reds for a fortnight?

How, though, can we refuse to do battle with the Red Chinese, on their own terms? If, foreseeing the unbearable cost in blood and treasure that continuing war on the ground there will entail, we do withdraw, what then? Then one thing only. All the brave men who have died in Korea already will have died in vain, the United Nations will crumble and fall as a body able to impose peace upon the world by force of arms. All we have fought for so bitterly and so bravely so far will have been lost.

The only alternative which occurs to me now, in this mood of despondency which grips not only me, but all who have watched the tragic and fearful turn of events in Korea, is one so dreadful that I hesitate to put down the words. It is simply this: To tell Stalin, through his diplomats here, so that there can be no feeling that we are making an idle threat which we will not back up, that unless the Chinese armies are withdrawn from Korea back beyond the Yalu, we will then strike with the atomic bomb. Not at the scattered ground forces there, but at the heart of Russia itself, at Moscow, at the Kremlin.

If the atomic bomb has any virtue as a deterrent, it is time to find it out. If Stalin fears it, if he understands that we are able to deliver the bomb, and if he is not yet ready to withstand such an assault, he will order his Chinese satellites to pull back. If he is ready to enter the last great conflict which will decide whether or not Democracy or Communism, good or evil, shall prevail upon the earth, we will soon have his answer. It will come in the form of atomic bombs striking at our own seat of government, at our own heartland. If we threaten to use the weapon, we must brace ourselves to bear up under its use against us.

So long as there is the faintest glimmer of hope that matters in Korea can be resolved without the use of the ultimate weapon we should not consider its use. But the quietness of the front there during the past few days is ominous. Great battles seem to be impending. This time, again we may hold. But we cannot go on and on, taking the dreadful losses that all-out battle with the Chinese would entail. Soon we must resolve the matter one way or another.

And, God help us all, the only answer that I see now, is to make it clear to Russia that we at last are willing to use the bomb, not against their satellites, but against themselves.

CHANNING COPE

Read These for The Land's Sake

In today's mail is a card from a farmer asking the names of books "written by yourself or others regarding pasture-building." Well, sir, the gentleman came to the right place, for right before me is a happy-looking pile of four new books, each one written by Georgians for Georgians.

One is a lovely and lively conservation and livestock book for children called "Our Daily Bread." It was written by the lovely and lively Susan Myrick, of the Macon newspapers, than whom there is no one more loved and respected in the whole field of conservation.

And It Does Miss Susan says, "This book aims to present in simple form the rudiments of soil and water conservation, to teach children that everything we eat and wear comes from the soil." And so it does, in clear words and joyous pictures. Parents should read it aloud to the children. It is published by The Interstate, of Danville, Ill.

Number Two is Paul Chapman's fine edition of "Pastures," published by Turner E. Smith, of Atlanta, and written by R. R. Lancaster, Texas A. and M. College; Edwin James, U. of Ga.; R. Y. Bailey, U. S. Soil Conservation Service; and R. R. Harris, U. of Ga. This work is intended primarily for teachers of vocational agriculture and instructors of classes for farmers and students. It is easy reading and makes an excellent reference volume for livestock and pasture farmers.

"Conserving Soil Resources" is next on the pile. It was written by Paul Chapman, C. L. Veatch, of the Soil Conservation Service, and Frank Fitch, Jr., all of Georgia, at the request of the Georgia Association of Soil Conservation District Supervisors. Their chairman, Jim Gillis, Jr., wrote the introduction. It is a textbook, primarily, but all those who deal with the land will find it interesting and authoritative. It is a Turner Smith publication.

New, Too Most recent of all is George King's "Pastures For the South," published by The Interstate. George King is director of the Coastal Plain Experiment Station at Tifton, Ga., and has been for years a leader in pasture development. He mentions the assistance given him by J. L. Stephens, Glenn Burton, and Byron Southwell in preparing the text. M. D. Mobley edited the work. It is a grand book.

These books came into being as a result of our remarkable advance in livestock raising. Together, with Russell Lord's "Forever the Land," Bromfield's "Out of the Earth," and our own "Front Porch Farmer," now in its sixth printing, they make up a formidable array.

(I wouldn't mention this last book, of course, but the man asked for it and I wouldn't want to withhold any information from him.)

Better Income, Better Future

There are a lot of people in town this week mulling over a bunch of figures, and determining how best to prepare them accurately and how best to present them to the public in the most understandable manner. First inclination of the lay observer perhaps would be to throw up the hands and scream at the array of statistics worked on by the various labor departments of the several Southern States, but one cannot honestly do this for the totals and findings arrived at plot the development of an area and the progress of its citizens. The Southern Regional Employment Statistics Conference is meeting here Monday through Thursday, with the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor joining in. These State agencies, in co-operation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics, each month present through their bulletins the story of non-agricultural employment in their areas. Also, they keep tab on hourly and weekly average earnings and average weekly hours in selected industries.

All in all, these reports monthly take the temperature of Dixie business, and give a chart for the future.

Right now, throughout the South, employment is going to new highs, even at the threshold of increased employment for the Nation's defense program. In Georgia, for instance, more people are employed in manufacturing and related industries than at any time in history. And that is the story in most of the 12 Southern States represented at the conference here.

Going back to August, so as to get comparable figures from all the states, we find that vast increases in employment have been plotted by the caretakers of the figures and decimals. Gains in numbers employed in non-agricultural endeavors show increases over a year's time ranging from 1,100 in Louisiana to 90,000 in Texas. Georgia was running in second place with around 40,000 added workers.

In total persons in non-agricultural employment, Texas again headed the list in August with a total of 2,405,900. Georgia was third with 797,500, following North Carolina with 871,000.

All these people are employed in places other than the farm. They work in textile plants, in construction, in service industries, in transportation, and in Government.

Government itself stands high as an employer in the Southern region, and Georgia is second in this category, exceeded only by Texas, which due to its huge size carries a lot of statistical weight.

Employed in all branches of Government—National, State, and local—were 119,100 Georgians in August. Texas had 263,800. Arkansas had only 50,200.

In textile mill products, Georgia, of course, is near the top, exceeded only by North and South Carolina in employment in this field.

Of all the 12 States in this Southern region, Georgia certainly is a leader in manufacturing, but the entire region is showing great progress during this period since World War II.

The people who add the columns and figure the percentages in all the lines of industry in their states give the region's businessmen and other citizens a yardstick presenting irrefutable evidence of the progress of the Southland. Statistically, Dixie is going forward.

It is important that this progress be maintained and that progress in other fields—some of which can't be added in columns—keep pace with manufacturing. With added industry, and added income, all of the Southern States will have the wherewithal to fashion better schools, better hospitals, better Government—and a better future for all the citizens of Dixie.

JAMES RESTON

Election Leaves Acheson in Middle

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Secretary of State Acheson told the press Wednesday that he had "no intention whatever" of resigning as a result of the election victory of some of his most avid critics.

This is an entirely natural morning-after reaction, but the real question is whether Mr. Acheson is right in the assumptions on which he based his comment. These were (1) that the election would not have any effect on the conduct of American foreign policy, and (2) that the American people now want to close ranks.

There are many people in addition to the Secretary of State who hope both of these assumptions are correct, but the evidence points definitely in the other direction. This was an election of extraordinary violence. It was a test between those in the Republican Party who favored foreign and domestic policies not much different from the Administration's and those who favored the strategy of opposing the Democrats violently in both the foreign and domestic fields.

The moderates in the Republican Party had their way in the 1948 Presidential election and lost. Those who argued for violent opposition, even if it meant dragging foreign policy into the lower levels of American politics, had their way this time, and they won.

This does not mean that the same tactics are going to be employed against Acheson and his department in the Eighty-second Congress. Many men who used the tactics of McCarthyism and won are undoubtedly ashamed of the blunt instruments used and will try to be more moderate in meeting their new responsibilities. Averell Harriman, the President's co-ordinator of foreign policy activities, likewise may forget that he campaigned openly against Senator Taft and the new Senator from California, Richard Nixon, but to assume that everybody on both sides will forget and forgive and start all over, may prove to be a trifle naive.

For many prominent Republicans who on principle have opposed the Administration's foreign policy and its appeal to bipartisanship are now convinced that increased opposition is good politics.

The loss of five sorely needed Democratic votes in the Senate would be serious enough, but Acheson's main problem is not so much with the new Republicans. It is (1) with those Democratic Senators who, as a result of the election, are now convinced that he is a political liability, and (2) with the suspicious attitude of the country toward him and his department.

This problem was apparent to any observer who went about the country even before the election. It was not that objective, fair-minded people believed the reckless charges leveled against the Secretary of State and his policies. The trouble was—and still is—that there is a large area between belief and disbelief.

As Acheson himself is fond of saying, you can circulate a lot of rumors about the morality of a woman and she can deny them all she likes, but a lot of men will always look vaguely dubious about her when she passes by. A lot of voters demonstrated the validity of this observation. Many were vocal during the campaign. They neither wholly believed nor wholly disbelieved what was said about the Secretary of State and his department. They were merely uneasy and suspicious.

It is not the facts in this situation that are determining events so much as people's opinions of the facts. The voters did not ask whether the Republicans would have done any better with Chiang Kai-shek in 1946. They apparently were not as appalled by the strategy of McCarthy as Washington believed. They did not respond to the attacks on Acheson by weighing his quolifications against those of Harriman or Chief Justice Vinson or Gov. Adlai Stevenson, of Illinois. They voted a feeling of dissatisfaction, an uneasiness about the state of affairs.

Many people, in addition to Acheson, would like to believe that this election had let out a lot of poison like a poultice. But it is at least an even bet that it has done just the opposite.

Acheson's principal theme for the past six months has been that America must build strong points out of weak points before it can deal effectively with the Russians. It is good thesis, but it applies to the homefront as well as to overseas.

If the observations of a reporter after a trip around the country are worth anything, one of the weakest points in our foreign policy is the lack of understanding between the Department of State and the people it serves.

Seldom in modern history has any nation achieved so much so fast as the United States in the last few years, during all of which Acheson has been a principal and perhaps a decisive figure. Yet the paradox is that the air in America is full of cries that we have failed. This is the weak point that will have to be tackled by somebody if the election is to be understood and if the Administration's policies overseas are to be secure.

Destroyer Collision In Atlantic Kills 4

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 8—(UP)—Two fast Navy destroyers collided in predawn darkness 400 miles east of Wilmington, N. C., Wednesday and the Navy reported four sailors dead and four injured—three critically.

The destroyers, slicing through calm seas under normal weather conditions when they crashed, suffered heavy damage to hulls and below-deck quarters but stayed afloat.

The names of casualties were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Two ocean-going tugs were sent to the scene to bring the battered USS Roan and USS Brownson into port. All casualties were aboard the Roan and medical officers here were checking by radio to learn if the injured might be removed to Navy hospitals by helicopter.

The vessels were attached to Destroyer Squadron 10 at Newport, R. I. The Brownson, flagship of Capt. H. E. Heneberger, was commanded by Cmdr. E. B. Henry. Cmdr. D. L. Martineau is skipper of the Roan.

Officers said the ships were engaged in Atlantic Fleet operations with Division 101.

There was no immediate explanation of the collision. The Navy said a court of inquiry would be named to investigate.

SICK, ASHAMED

Lost Boy Slips Home After Trip

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Fourteen-year-old Jerry Lee Gibby, who disappeared Sept. 21 from his Palmetto home and hitchhiked to Texas while police throughout the Southeast tried to trace him, finally was found—at home with the bed covers tucked securely over his head.

The youth's aunt—Mrs. J. H. Gravitt of 516 Calhoun St., S. W. said Jerry's mother, Mrs. Norman Gibby, heard the Gibby family's dog barking near the Palmetto residence about 9 p. m. Monday. Mrs. Gibby investigated, found the back door open, then discovered her son bundled beneath the covers in his bed, sick, ashamed, tired and almost "starved to death."

After a hastily prepared meal—which he "ate ravenously" after going without food for two days—he related the following story, according to Mrs. Gravitt:

When he was involved in an accident on Sept. 18 while driving his father's truck, he became afraid officers would discover he had illegally obtained a driver's license.

After leaving home for school, he hitch-hiked to LaGrange where he joined another hitchhiker. The two worked at a tourist camp in that area.

Then he headed West, still bareheaded and wearing the same tan khaki pants and shirt he wore when he left Palmetto. By the time he reached Texas and earned enough money at odd jobs to buy food and warm clothes, he was ready to return home.

His next stop was Kansas City, Mo., where he worked three days driving an ice truck. But facing cold and hungry days while waiting for his pay, he struck out for home. He mailed a postcard to his mother at St. Louis saying he was well and working.

Reaching Atlanta about midnight Sunday, he slept at the bus station till Monday morning, then hitch-hiked home. He didn't ask his Atlanta relatives for shelter because he "didn't want to bother them."

Lt. H. A. Poole, GBI agent who worked on the case, said the Drivers' License Division of the Department of Public Safety has already been notified, and the youth's license revoked.

They could, and not even hurt this miracle NYON upholstery. Proof of this took place in a large New York department store. A length of material was used as floor covering at the store entrance . . . and after a week of constant wear, during which time an estimated 100,000 people trampled over it, a good brushing with a whisk broom, followed by a sponging with a damp cloth, removed all the dirt, and the fabric looked like new.

Souk, Main Street For the Arab

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

MEKNES, Morocco (By Air Mail)—The Souk of North Africa is the Broadway Subway at rush hour, the basement of your favorite store on Thrift Thursday, a riot at a fire, a traffic jam on Peachtree in the rain, and the melting pot of civilization compressed together in between crumbling walls five feet apart and stretching for eight or nine terrifying miles.

It is the odor of unguents, spices, rancid oils, decaying flesh, human filth, tanned leather, goats; it is the red of paprika stacked in baskets, the poisonour pink of cheap candy open to flies and spittle, the sheen of silver and copper, the blue of cobalt that with henna and chartreuse are native dyes, and the endless procession of robes and veils and turbans that push past the dank dirty holes in the wall that are separate "stores."

The Souk is the Main Street of the Arab and he loves it. All day long he trudges up and down hill, leading his poor burro, shouting "Balek!"—(Watch out!)—as he passes. He seems to have no destination, yet he hurries with an urgency that amounts to frenzy in observation.

The Arabs work like slaves—though they are free men. The red-eyed tailor passing his needle back and forth through a garment, while his little boy locks the thread, is pitifully tired. There is sadness and fatigue in the sweet faces of the five year old boys pounding patterns in copper trays and bearing their baby brothers and sisters in hammocks on their backs. The laborers wresting an excavation from rock with iron bars and breaking stone with heavy mattocks remind you that life is cheap, and only machines are too dear to be obtained.

The burro is the lovable, gentle beast of the world, shouldering every load, bearing man and his burden, grinding mills, pulling trees and twigs, drawing water, mincing through crowds with impeccable manners without a sound. All burros are thin, as if they never had a moment to spend growing fat.

Every essential of Arab life passes hands in the Souk, and most of them are made there. The burnoose that he wears against the weather, his wife's veil that covers her whole face leaving only the gleam of eyes to show, their handful of cereal or shank of lean raw mutton, often covered with flies, the pointed, heelless slippers of embroidered leather or plainest hide the whole family needs, the little pieces of red or blue silk thread that may embellish the neck of a robe one day—all these are piled together in the Souk.

Piles of herbs and bark, pepper, cinnamon, garlic stand opened to be cupped in the hand tested for pungence.

The Arab is a mysterious man who keeps to himself and no one can say exactly how he lives or what he thinks.

Our host in Morocco, Pierre Albert Aubry, is a retired Army major who has spent a lifetime here and even he does not know them well.

His tall figure guiding us through swarms of people brings hissing recognition, "Le Commandant!" and there are always several who spring forward to act as guide, but the Major is wary where he leads us. You can see a lifetime of caution in the Commandant's bright eyes and feel it in his step.

After a few sorry sorties into shopping for trinkets, the Major took over our barter and it was a game to watch. We fingered the desired piece of copper or little square of embroidery as the Arab sized us up. He named his price. The Major offered less than half. The Arab seemed insulted to the quick. He came down a few hundred francs. The Major turned away, offered a little more. A great protest came from the Souk-keeper, accompanied by his witnesses who gathered like children to see the sport. He came down again. The Commandant named his final price and the Arab seized it as if in great triumph. It was a deal. We had paid about a half of the stated price and the Arab had had his clash of bargaining and seemed happy.

Children mill through the Souk all day, apparently unfettered and always ignored with kindness. We passed an unlighted cavern one day where voices of children rose in a wierd chant. Major Aubry said. "School." They were sitting on the floor, cross-legged, chanting Arabic.

The cross-legged squat is as natural here as a chair is to Europeans. You can look in any nook, beside any tree or wall or doorway and see a huddled figure impassively waiting eternity. They strive terribly in their machineless work, for their own survival, but when they sit, they sit easy.

The beggars of the storybooks are here, only more withdrawn and less demanding, as they were reluctant to impose their need upon a stranger. The chorus of beggars hunched by a wall in Meknes chanting "Alms! Alms! Alms!" in rhythmic unison is a haunting sound I cannot forget.

Grade Mothers Honor Miss Rentz

The mothers of the 41 pupils in the sixth grade at Morningside School will entertain at tea Thursday in compliment to their teacher, Miss Jean Rentz, a November bride-elect.

The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Thomas on Cumberland Road, and the calling hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Miss Rentz, daughter of Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Rentz, has invited each of her students to her marriage. At the ceremony she will carry an heirloom real lace handkerchief made by her grandmother, and in her slipper she will wear a good luck coin brought from India by Miss Mary Kennedy, of the Associate Reform Presbyterian Mission School there.

GLASS OF FASHION

Male Apparel Change Spotlights Shoes, Suits

By MAYNITA GERRY

Just because you don't hear as much hoop-de-do over men's fashion changes as you do over women's, don't get the idea that things are at a standstill from that quarter. As a matter of fact, much is afoot, both literally and otherwise, in men's apparel.

Take shoes, for instance. Now that we've finally got men in the habit of wearing them, the next step is to encourage them to choose shoes to go with clothes for specific occasions. For example, instead of wearing the familiar pair of brown oxfords with everything from blue jeans to tuxedo trousers, the fashion-conscious male will change his shoes as he changes his suits.

GOOD FOR DRESS

Black brushed leather oxford

With casual clothes, he will wear brogues and moccasin-type shoes or, perhaps, the chukka boot, in both smooth and brushed leathers. While the cordovan wing-tip brogue remains just about the most popular all-round shoe in most men's wardrobes, it is no longer considered appropriate for dressy occasions, such as cocktail and dinner parties. For these times, men will be required to wear black shoes with a straight tip.

According to the National Shoe Institute, men's footwear in general is beginning to reflect a dressier appearance. Narrower soles, neater trims, custom-type lasts and straight tips are the more obvious traits of this trend.

Also underway at the moment is a comparatively new theory of dress, as far as the man is concerned. Patterned after the feminine fashion of using different accessories to change the appearance of a basic dress or suit, this theory, if put into general practice, will afford men an opportunity to break away from the stereotyped sameness of their garb and inject a little ingenuity and originality into their wardrobe. Equally important, as the women discovered long ago, this technique in dressing is very considerate of the clothes budget.

Here is the basic formula. Take one suit, a gray flannel, a salt-and-pepper tweed or a good worsted will do. For general wear, to the office, etc., add a button-down oxford shirt, a medium bold tie and a soft snap brim hat.

If you want to look like a bank president, a theater magnate or some other affluential individual, switch to a Homburg hat, a neat tab-collared shirt and a rich woven tie. Going casual? A Tartan wool tie, worn with a wide spread collared shirt, a Tyrolean hat and a sweater will give the same suit the desired country bred air.

Then when you wish to dress up a bit, add to your basic suit a straight point collared shirt, a satin or jacquard tie and a new snap brim hat with a center crease.

While grocery stores were moaning about runs on sugar, coffee, and black pepper and stocking counters were aghast at runs on nylons (and their customers were pretty horrified at runs in them), jewelers slowly woke up to the fact that they too were passing out some hot wartime items. Men's rings.

The increased sale of men's rings since the start of the Korean War has made the jewelers very happy, but has also set them wondering. Since the same trend was very much in evidence during World War II, when jewelers faced an unprecedented demand for all kinds of men's rings, including colored stone rings, signet rings and all other types, some sort of psychology must be at work behind Johnny's urge to march off to war, wearing a gleaming new ring on his finger.

Just what it is, they don't know. Of this, however, they are sure: That a ring makes an ideal present for the man in uniform.

Bank Official Outlines Selected Investment

By YOLANDE GWIN

Women often overlook the importance of an investment advisor. And especially those whose self-earned finances provide an opportunity as well as an outlet for sound investments as a security for the future.

Many ask too many for advice resulting in confused information and doubt as to investments, instead of obtaining sound advice from one individual in whom they have confidence. This was outlined Wednesday by J. Allan Wilson, Vice-President of the Citizens and Southern Bank, who spoke to several hundred homemakers and careerists attending the fifth Women's Finance Forum sponsored by the bank.

Mr. Wilson

"Investment plans should be adopted after careful consideration of the personal situation of each individual," said Wilson. "I think it wise to recommend that women choose an investment objective, and then consider the need for liquidity; for safety for income and for the desire for a liberal income and possible enhancement. Selection of investments are very important, too. Buy quality, be careful when you buy and keep up with developments that might affect your securities. The increasing complexities of our expanding national economy call for intensified diligence on the part of the investors. The interpational situation and the increasing taxation are two factors of serious importance to all investors at this time."

Mr. Wilson beamed his talk in an effort to enlighten the layman mind, and spoke in non technical terms explaining the meaning of many words—many used on income tax forms and ballot sheets—in order to further clarify his points.

My Biggest Treat is a good cup of coffee. And with G. Washington's new-type Instant Coffee—a perfect cup is what I get every time. Try it! G. Washington's is unlike any other instant coffee you've had. It's not powdered coffee beans, not a coffee substitute but real coffee brewed by experts. Each cup of G. Washington's is brewed for you by experts. When the brew reaches the peak of perfection, the water's removed instantly. All the coffee richness and coffee flavor are left in. All you do is put back the hot water. Remember, G. Washington's exclusive process seals in flavor and freshness so this coffee can't go stale even after you open the can. With G. Washington's you're sure! You get a perfect cup of coffee every time.

No Experience Necessary to make fluffy, fluffy rice! Just use Uncle Ben's Converted extra long grain Rice—it's easier to cook and guaranteed to cook up white and fluffy every time, or your money back. Every grain is separate and stays separate. It reheats without gumminess even after you store it in your refrigerator. These advantages are only the beginning. Uncle Ben's Rice is also better for you and more delicious, because Uncle Ben's revolutionary new process seals natural B-vitamins and flavor into each grain. And remember—it's always, always fluffy.

Turkey Talk: Enjoy a new treat this Thanksgiving! Look up a good rice stuffing in your cook book and stuff your turkey with Uncle Ben's richer flavored, fluffy, fluffy rice.

Here's Sugar 'N' Spice ready mixed, ready to use. It's Domino Sugar and Cinnamon in a new glass shaker. A handsome shaker you can put right on the table so it's easy to make cinnamon toast just to your taste—and all you want! You know how folks go for this favorite childhood treat. And, because it's Domino Sugar you're sure of full flavor. In fact—the flavor of this sparkling twosome is so popular you'd better get two shakers—one for handy use in the kitchen, too. Spice up your favorite foods—easily—like this:

Sprinkle Domino Sugar and Cinnamon on apple sauce, apple fritters and on hot Apple Cobbler. It's super-duper!

A Miracle In Custard! Imagine a tender, creamy-smooth, firm custard style dessert that cooks in only 7 minutes! No wonder I stay excited about the new Royal Custard Style Dessert. It needs no baking yet has the delicious taste and texture of old-fashioned baked custard. You just add milk! It contains no eggs—never lumps—it's perfect every time. And, like other Royal Puddings, this fine new dessert gives more food energy than the fresh milk it's made with. Nourishing—easy to digest—ideal for everybody! Treat your folks to this Fruit-topped Custard: Prepare Royal Custard Style Dessert as package directs. Chill in individual cups. Serve in cups topped with canned or frozen berries and whipped cream.

Anybody Can Have A Young Waistline

Nature designed the waist to be the slenderest part of the silhouette . . . and certainly a slim, supple waist makes for a young-looking figure. Wait! Don't turn away discouraged. Anybody can keep, or recapture, a neat, sweet waist. While a thickening through the middle is characteristic of the middle-age figure, it is by no means inevitable.

No glamour girl in Hollywood, middle age to the contrary, has a waist that measures more than 26½ inches . . . or if she does, it's a cinch it's a secret.

But the movies have no priority on the fashionably slim waist. Many of Eve's daughters pride themselves on keeping a trim waist, no matter how the birthdays fly. Whenever I give a talk on figures, I offer an orchid to the lady in the audience who has been married for ten years or more, has a family and still has her slim waistline. There is always a gal who gets the orchid, and the crowd cheers.

The test is this: If your weight is normal and your waistline is no more than two inches larger than it was when you waltzed down the aisle . . . congratulations, you deserve an orchid too.

None of us needs a tape measure to tell when the waist is slipping. A skirtband that's a mite tight is fair warning. Here are the measures that help recapture the wedding-ring waist—pull up with the lower abdominal muscles, hold, pull the waist away from the hips. To keep that pulled-slim effect, put tone in the muscles that hug the waist and span the abdomen. Easy exercise will do it.

Movement: Starting with the lower abdominal muscles, pull firmly up and in—feel the lift all through the midsection. Now push palms of hands toward the ceiling—s-t-r-e-t-c-h. Relax and stretch again, a half-dozen times. Then, still holding the upstretch through the middle, arms arched overhead, clasp left wrist with right hand and slowly bend to the right . . . pull with the right hand and stretch all along the left side. Back to center and bend to the right again, 6 to 8 times. Now clasp right wrist with left hand and bend to the left, stretching along the right side. It even feels streamlining.

Position: Kneel on floor and sit back on heels, with arms out at sides at shoulder level. Again pull up-and-in snugly with middle muscles and hold the upstretch.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Will Amputation Help Crippled Child Socially?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You once discussed a mother's concern about her youngest daughter's crippled leg, a congenital defect. The child is nearly four years old, and the mother speculates anxiously on the benefits (if any) of amputation. You say the remedy of first importance is for the mother to get an unembarrassed attitude towards the condition. I agree.

I was born 48 years ago in Ireland, and one of my schoolmates, a younger girl in kindergarten, had an almost identical difficulty. Except for the lame appearance, it made little difference in her life. She entered into games, played good tennis, was a good swimmer; in later years looked lovely in swim suits. When she grew up she made a really wonderful appearance. She is always great fun, with a delightful disposition.

She always wanted to write, but never did. She went to Oxford University, took her degree and when the British Broadcasting Corporation was formed, she got a job with it and rapidly advanced. She entertained beautifully, had most interesting friends, and in her early forties, she married a charming writer. Their marriage is wonderfully happy.

Furthermore, one friend of ours, a war amputee, says an artificial limb is dreadfully tiring to wear and makes his stump ache. An artificial limb would disbar a girl from swimming, for it requires long clothing as camouflage.

With the apparent increase in polio crippling, it seems we've made a concomitant social gain, in that many of us have developed an attitude of acceptance towards all kinds of crippling. The idea of amputation as a corrective seems to me to be using a larger pain to drown out a lesser.—V. P.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our son David, now 7, was born with practically the same deformity as described in your column recently. We started taking him to an excellent orthopedic surgeon when he was 17 days old, and have been consulting him ever since. David began wearing a brace at the age of two years, and when he was four our doctor recommended amputation. The idea had never occurred to me, and I had the same shock reaction that you mention—the reaction of the uninitiated.

After a great deal of thought, and after consulting two other orthopedic surgeons, we decided on amputation. I can sincerely say that neither my husband nor I have had one moment's regret about the decision. David is now in the second grade, an active happy lad, who can ride a two-wheel bicycle, roller skate and do all the things that a boy his age normally does—much of which he couldn't do if he had to rely on a brace. He is now wearing his second artificial limb.

In defense of the other mother's anxiety, I should say it isn't "neurotic," but simply a wholesome expression of loving concern, to feel grieved about the child's deformity, and to want to do whatever is best to help minimize the handicap.—G. B.

• DEAR READERS: The foregoing thoughtful but clashing views are typical of much mail received on this subject since the original discussion appeared. The audience reaction seems about equally divided for and against amputation in cases of the kind described. Most spokesmen are testifying from intimate experience with the choice involved; and thus each tends to defend his personal solution as "best for all."—M. H.

Red Cross Officer Talks Food Problems

Miss Pauline Murrah, national director of Food and Nutrition Service for the American Red Cross, is here to confer with the Atlanta chapter, headed by Miss Margaret Burge, on the problems of mass feeding for national emergencies.

Speaking to volunteer instructors in nutrition and canteen work, Miss Murrah reviewed the rules given in the Blue Book of Civil Defense, as adapted to local needs, stressing the importance of training groups of civilians in self-help in time of emergency.

The expansion of the blood program has increased the demand for canteen workers, Miss Murrah remarked, and the tenseness of the world situation makes continued training and maintenance more than ever important.

BISHER

From Yelvington To Clary To Wade

A sort of trilogy in sports:

Once upon a time a kind man invited a boy with yellow hair to see the University of Florida play the University of Georgia at football, four quarters to a decision. The kind man bought the boy's ticket, paid his transportation and sat him down where the Florida cheers would sound the loudest.

The fellow was being kind with a purpose, like a character in mythology who is kind to all animals for fear they might turn into beautiful princesses. The kind man expected the kid with yellow hair to turn into a handsome tackle, and he wished him for Florida.

It was one of those years, of which there have been numerous recently, when Georgia was able to handle the Gators like a lion handles its young. The kind man's guest had slight opportunity to hear Florida cheers, but he left the game much impressed.

He was so impressed, in fact, that he went to the University of Georgia and became a tackle named Dick Yelvington, full-sized and fierce.

This is no fairy tale. That's how Dick Yelvington got to Georgia. He had been knocking 'em dead at Mainland High in Daytona Beach, Fla., and Florida folks, building for the future, became much concerned with his future. Florida, though, was wearing the wrong colors that day. The gentlemen in red and black made such a fan out of Yelvington that he crossed over to join them.

This Is Clary at Bat

I'd been hearing that Ellis Clary was a man of the typewriter in the off-season, and that the people of Valdosta could read his stuff most any day. It's hardly fair for Valdosta to have Clary all to itself, and today we shall share him through the effort of a brave man who smuggled this product out of the South Georgia metropolis.

Ellis, you see, goes gadding about the nation each weekend sampling the football goods. He is known to have seen Notre Dame play North Carolina one weekend, Texas play SMU the next and Florida play Georgia the next, all without benefit of an expense account. This naturally makes him a genius in any newspaper office.

This is a bit dated, but I think you'll see he plays the typewriter much in the same manner he plays second base. This is the Clary product on the Georgia Tech-Kentucky game:

"I just happened to be in Atlanta Saturday and when I heard that there was going to be a football game between Tech and Kentucky I hustled out to Grant Field and sure enough they were just fixing to start knocking.

"It was a good game. The Kentucky lads won, 28 to 14, in a furious contest. The Wildcats from Kentucky were dressed in snow-white suits and were fast as white lightning and just as strong.

"This whole Kentucky squad appeared to be well fed. Their left tackle, a fellow named Bob Gain, was especially well upholstered. He was on the program at six feet three and 230 pounds, which seemed to be a somewhat conservative estimate of the weight which he was tossing around in Tech's backfield all afternoon.

"No passer is going to build up his record with this one-man posse hounding him. That ain't patty-cake Gain plays when the game starts. Any All-America without this guy on it is counterfeit.

"The whole Wildcat team was right rough and the Sugar Bowl folks might get to see this outfit operate on somebody New Year's Day. I wouldn't want to play any cards with that Wildcat quarterback, Parilli, after watching him palm and hide that football from the Yellow Jackets. I agree with that Mississippi coach who said that he was the best between the Atlantic and the Pacific. That's a lot of ground, but this guy is a lot of football player.

"The Tech team put up a fierce battle and actually led the mighty Wildcats, 7 to 0, at the end of the first quarter, but gradually were worn down by the steady pounding. The Yellow Jackets were so glad to see Gain leave the game late in the fourth quarter that they ripped off a touchdown right over his substitute. It was scored by young Chappell Rhino on a beautiful 36-yard dash. This Rhino looks like the best runner Tech has had in years. He can scoot!"

Way to Victory Is Through the Stomach

Wallace Wade, who just recently became owner of his 200th football coaching victory, broke into the business at Fitzgerald-Clarke School up in Tennessee. World War I was just over and the prep school offered Wade his chance in 1919.

On the schedule that year was a game with Sewanee Prep, then a part of University of the South. On the eve of the game, the good Sewanee people had prepared a major party for the Fitzgerald-Clarke visitors. Wade backed off at the idea of his men attending a pre-game party, then gave in when the Sewanee folks told him what a shame it was, since the party had been planned all week. Wade, however, called the players together and ordered them not to eat any food at the party.

It was all over and Wade sat talking with an official of the school when the prep coach walked in.

"How did the party go?" asked the school official.

"Not worth a dern," said the coach, not recognizing Wade. "That fool coach of theirs wouldn't let his boys eat any of that rich food we prepared for them."

FILCHOCK BACK IN AMERICAN FOOTBALL

Once-Barred Pro Gets Chance With Baltimore

Frank Filchock Inks Contract With Colts

Baltimore Club Gives Ex-Giant New Chance

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8—(AP)—The Baltimore Colts Wednesday gave Frank Filchock his chance to come back to the National Football League from which he'd been banned four years because of a bribe offer.

"It's mighty good to be back," said the 33-year-old backfield player who spent the last four seasons playing for the Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian League.

Abe Watner, Colt president, said he gave Filchock a contract primarily "to give Frank another chance to play in this country."

Filchock and his New York Giant teammate Merle Hapes were banned indefinitely for not reporting a bribe offer before the 1946 championship playoff with the Chicago Bears. Filchock played in the game which the Bears won.

Commissioner Bert Bell, of the NFL, last July lifted the suspension on Filchock. But none of the teams moved to sign him and he went on playing in the Canadian League.

Play in the league ended recently and Filchock approached Watner earlier this week.

Filchock played seven years with the Washington Redskins and Giants after starring at Indiana. In 1941 he was seventh in rushing in the National Football League and led it in passing.

Playing in the Canadian League, for which he was named that country's "Male Athlete of 1949," has kept Filchock in shape and the Colts may use him Sunday against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Baltimore still has to play the Redskins and Giants, his old teams, this season.

The 198-pounder is primarily a quarterback, of which the Colts already have two in Y. A. Tittle and Adrian Burk. However, he also can play the other backfield positions.

Hargrove Flits In Sports Mag

The longshot magazine gamble of the fall is on the market this week in "Sports Stars."

It's called "Soph Sensation of the South" and the accused is Lauren Hargrove, Georgia's rookie halfback from Fitzgerald. The magazine devotes three pages and pictures to the story authored by Sports Editor Furman Bisher and Edwin Pope of The Constitution.

Dodd Risks Unique Record In Tech-VMI Game Saturday

By JACK JACKSON

Mere mention of the word "breather" causes many of the Nation's top football coaches to quiver, but such is not the case with Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd.

Not that the Jacket head man doesn't worry over games scheduled with the smaller college elevens, they all do that. But since he took over at The Flats in 1945, not once has he seen his team beaten by such a foe.

Virginia Military, which moves into Grant Field Saturday afternoon, must be classed as such a foe, although in times like these, it is often hard to tab just what amounts to a breather. The Cadets have had rough going against major foes this Fall and have dropped a 7-6 decision to little Catawba.

But back to Dodd's record. In itself, the fact that Tech has beaten nine smaller rivals under his regime might not seem outstanding. A look at some of the others around the Nation reveals that it is nothing of which to be ashamed.

CAPT. KIRBY BERNICH

Leads VMI Against Tech

Take N. C. State and Beattie Feathers. In 1949, the Wolfpack played such folks as Maryland, Clemson and Duke close games and defeated Wake Forest. Yet, they managed to down VPI by only one point. Then, this Fall that same team upset Maryland, yet managed only a 7-6 victory over Catawba.

Auburn is another good example of how folks can have a tough time against smaller schools. In 1948, Earl Brown's initial season at The Plains, the Tigers played Clemson, Tulane and Florida respectable games. Yet, they tied Louisiana Tech.

This Fall, early season losses to Wofford and Southeastern Louisiana, both of whom the Tigers were favored to beat, did much to dampen the spirits of the yet winless team.

Dodd has yet to see one of his teams extended by a small foe. This same VMI did the best of any in that string of nine victories by holding the Jackets to a 20-0 decision in 1947. Scores of the others were greater.

It is in itself an unusual record. When Saturday night rolls around, folks at Tech hope it will still be standing.

JACKET NOTES—A light drill was the order of the day Wednesday with numerous players taking it easy in sweat clothes. . . . Defensive combines studied the I formation as displayed by Bees playing the parts of Cadets. . . . The Jackets have won seven earlier games against VMI, losing none. Closest calls came in 1923 only three points made the difference. . . . Tech has already lost more games than in one season since 1945. With Alabama and Georgia remaining on the slate, the six defeats of that year could be duplicated. Prior to that, 1941 was the last time a Jacket team dropped as many as six.

Sawyer Top Pilot, Dropo Best Rookie

Compiled from Constitution Wire Reports

Big Walt Dropo, of the Boston Red Sox, Wednesday was named the American League's rookie of the year as Eddie Sawyer was acting surprised when told his job with the Phillies had gained him the title of top manager in baseball.

Dropo received 15 of 24 votes for the rookie title, voted by the Baseball Writers' Association. Sawyer was named manager by an AP annual nationwide poll.

Big Walt, recalled by Boston from Louisville early in the season when Bill Goodman was injured, played 136 games and collected 180 hits for a .323 average. He also slammed 34 home runs and tied teammate Vern Stephens for the American League lead with 144 runs batted in.

Sawyer said when told of his selection, "It was the farthest thing from my mind." The bald-ing ex-Ithaca College biology-professor was named on 164 of 331 ballots in AP's poll. Casey Stengel, who won the honor last year, received 134 votes to finish a close second.

About his 1950 National League champs, Sawyer said they would be right back in there next year "if the draft doesn't cut too big a hole. After all," he added, "it is a young ball club and should be considerably better with a year more of experience behind it."

Four other managers gained recognition. Robert (Red) Rolfe received 51 votes and third place for his job with the second place Detroit Tigers. Leo Durocher polled 23 for his job with the Giants. Steve O'Neill, of the Red Sox, received five votes and the Senators' Bucky Harris four.

Thesz' Mat Title At Stake Tonight

Lou Thesz and Jack Kennedy will clash for Thesz' world heavyweight title belt in the main event on Thursday night's wrestling card at the city auditorium. Kennedy gained the Southern crown only last week.

Thesz, now considered among the all-time greats, hails from St. Louis, Mo., the son of Hungarian parents. At 33, he's a ring veteran, having started wrestling when only eight years old under the coaching of his father, a professional matman in his native Hungary.

Opening of the Shrine circus caused the move-up of matches from the customary Friday night, and due to the 10-day run of the circus, Thursday's card will wind up wrestling here until Nov. 24.

Two other single scraps and a tag bout complete the card, beginning at the usual time of 8:30.

BROWN, SMITH TANGLE

O'Keefe, Murphy Battle for Survival

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

O'Keefe and Murphy football teams are like two drowning men grabbing for the same small log as they go into their important battle at Grady Stadium Thursday night. Only one of them can make it.

Both need to latch onto a victory to keep their heads above water in the swirling City League rapids. The loser will be done for insofar as 1950 championship aspirations are concerned.

Hank Langston's Fighting Irish have lost only that blue-chips-down affair to Bass, 13-7, and Max (Red) Ivey's Eagles have been tamed twice, by Smith, 20-14, and Grady, 13-7, last week when Billy Metcalf's two long scoring runs were the victors' only threats.

Roberts' Picks

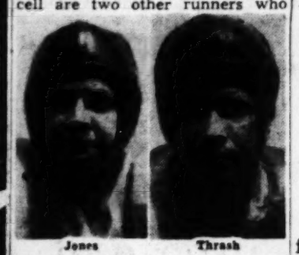

(Teams Records in Parenthesis)

WINNER	LOSER
O'Keefe (6-2-0)	Murphy (3-5-0)
Smith (1-7-0)	Brown (1-7-0)

Season Record: Won 134, Lost 34, Pct. 868. Last week—Won 17, Lost 5, Pct. 773.

Murphy gets a shot at leading Bass next week but must parlay victory with a Bass loss to Grady Friday night to have a chance to tie for the title. O'Keefe tangles with Grady next week, but needs two victories and one Bass loss to stalemate the issue.

Murphy has an extremely stubborn line that, most of the way, held Grady completely in check. It is headed by two giant tackles, Kenneth Thrash and Ray Jones plus Guard Wayne Brand and End Bobby Helms. Elmer Kirk, fancy running halfback whose light has been hidden under a bushel of praise for Mott Morrison and Bruce Schubele, is one of the most effective ball toters in the precinct. Earl Alliston and Gene Purcell are two other runners who

Brown and Smith, who have battled for the league title for three straight previous years with Brown winning each time, will match touchdowns at Cheney Stadium at 8 o'clock also, but this time the stakes will not be so high. The Rebels have improved vastly in recent weeks, and Smith, the year's hard-luck entry, has lost to no loop team by more than a single touchdown.

BLACK BOOK STUFF—Lenny Jacobs, Grady's terrific line backer, broke a leg in the Murphy game and is out for the year. That throws the big defensive burden in the middle against Bass on Larry Frank, Bert Oastler, Jerry Meyer and Jerry Froug.

John L. Carson, of Roosevelt, broke the City League cross-country mark over the Water Works course in a recent meet against Brown. His 10:41.0 was one second better than the mark set last year by Smith's Jack Blair.

GEORGIA TACKLE RICHARD STEELE
Atlanta Player Out Indefinitely

TWISTS KNEE IN DRILL

Consistent Steele Lost Indefinitely

By GENE ASHER

ATHENS, Nov. 8—Georgia's football team received a profound shock Wednesday when first-string defensive tackle Dick Steele severely injured his knee. He is lost indefinitely.

And Halfback Lauren Hargrove is on the doubtful list as a result of the gruelling scrimmage.

Steele, a six-foot-four-inch 225-pounder from Atlanta, twisted his knee on the last defensive play. He was one of Georgia's most consistent tacklers and was available for double duty.

Line Coach Ralph Jordan named "Big" Bill Walsh, sophomore, from Hackensack, N. J., as Steele's probable replacement. Walsh, who weighs 245 pounds, has played with injuries all season. He has shown considerable determination and spirit.

Coach Wallace Butts reshifted Dick Raber to halfback after Hargrove reinjured his ankle.

Scout Sterling Dupree leaned against his desk in the University athletic office. "Really now," he said, "do fans think this game will be a breather?"

He spoke of Alabama's Butch Avinger and Eddie Salem, North Carolina's Billy Hayes, and Vanderbilt's Billy Wade. Then he said, "Florida's Haywood Sullivan is a better passer than any of them."

Sullivan, six-foot, four-inch Gator quarterback, has completed 62 passes in 110 attempts. Those pitches were good for 717 yards and eight touchdowns. His average is 56.4 while Parilli has a 54.5 average.

Georgia's Mal Cook has a 59.6 average which is tops in the conference. But Cook has passed only 47 times.

"Their running attack and punting will be hard to beat," says Dupree.

Florida runners include Broadus, who has averaged 8.3 per try, and Scotty Peek, who runs the 100, on less than 9.8 consistently.

Florida's Fred Montsdeoca led the SEC with a 41.6 kicking average last year.

A 48-man squad, including Sophomore Tackle Clyde Smith, will leave here Thursday night for Jacksonville and Georgia's Saturday battle with Florida in the Gator Bowl.

TigersResume Rough Work

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 8—Defensive standout Homer Williams went through his initial workout from the center position as the Auburn Tigers returned to action after a two-day layoff.

Williams was selected on the All-Sophomore team last year, but played entirely on defense. Regular center Bill Hogarth was used chiefly on defense Wednesday, as Earl Brown sent his boys through an offensive scrimmage.

Rumors Have Blair Cherry Quitting Texas After Season

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 8—(AP)—Rumors flew at the University of Texas Wednesday that head football Coach Blair Cherry would quit at the end of this season. Neither Cherry nor Athletic Director D. X. Bible would confirm the rumor, but neither would deny it.

"My contract has three more years to run. All I've had on my mind is the Baylor game," Cherry said when queried. He said that was his only answer. (Texas plays Baylor Saturday).

Bible refused to say whether he and Cherry have discussed the possibility of Cherry's resigning after this year.

"I won't answer that question. It would be misinterpreted," Bible said. "Blair and I have discussed lots of things in the past."

The football wolves have been howling at Cherry primarily because of his failure to carry the Longhorns to a Southwest Conference championship since he succeeded Bible as head coach in 1947. The pressure increased this Fall when Texas—rated the conference favorite—got off to a slow start against outside competition and dropped a game to Oklahoma by one point, 14-13.

Players' Fund To Get Share of Series Take

Condensed From Constitution Wire Reports

Baseball Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler said from his home in Versailles, Ky., Wednesday that an agreement had been reached to recommend the bulk of the $975,000 received from World Series and television rights be put into the Player Pension fund.

The agreement was reached after a conference with Marty Marion, St. Louis Cardinal shortstop and National League representative, and Freddie Hutchinson, Detroit Tiger pitcher and American League representative. Chandler said the recommendation will be put before club owners at a Nov. 16 meeting in Cincinnati.

Arthur H. Ehlers, general manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced Wednesday the Edmund (Bing) Miller will be back with the A's next year as coach. Of the announcement, Miller said with a grin, "Now I've got to put with Jimmy Dykes (new Athletics manager) for another year."

The Athletics also announced Wednesday that the club will break an American League precedent when they open the 1951 season on Tuesday, April 17, with a night game. The Washington Senators will furnish the opposition.

Also, the Athletics announced title match last year in Buenos Aires.

On the racing front, Yellmantown won the Seven Hearts purse at Churchill Downs, Steel Blue took the Gesture at Jamaica, and Roman Bath captured the Andy K. purse at Pimlico.

through General Manager Ehlers that a working agreement had been signed with Rome, N. Y., of the Class C Canadian-American League. Ehlers emphasized that the A's would still keep their two Class A clubs in Lincoln, Neb., and Savannah, Ga.

Lusty Song, winner of the 1950 Hambletonian and highest money winning three-year-old trotter of all time, has been retired from racing. The prize horse earned more than $124,941 in his two-year career.

The International Equestrian Competitors' Corporation will set up headquarters at Washington, D. C., to supervise the selection of an American jumping team to represent this country in the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki, Finland.

Ezequiel Navarra, sensational three-cushion billiard star from Buenos Aires, will enter the World's Three-Cushion Championship to be held at Chicago next February. The Argentinian defeated Willie Hoppe, U. S. champion, by 184 points in a non-

Parilli, Dottley, Wade Top Statistical Pinnacle

Vito Parilli, John Dottley, Bill Wade, Al Lary and Dick McGowen continue to set the statistical pace for Southeastern Conference football players, according to figures released by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Parilli, whose quarterbacking and passing are guiding Kentucky toward an SEC title and a post-season bowl bid, leads in the aerial department. The Babe has completed 72 of 132 attempts, a percentage of 54.5, and has gained 1,047 yards in doing so. He has thrown 15 touchdown passes.

Wade, Vanderbilt sparkplug, has gone through the air and on the ground to first place in total offense. Bill's 1,221 yards on 136 plays lead Parilli who has netted 1,107 yards in all manners.

John Dottley, of Ole Miss, remains the leading rushing artist with Leskovar, another Wildcat, in second place.

California's Les Richter Named Lineman of Week

Condensed From Wire Reports

For the second straight week, a Pacific Coast Conference player has been named the Lineman of the Week by the Associated Press. This time it is Les Richter, California guard. Last week, Donn Moomaw, UCLA center, was honored.

A 19-year-old junior, Richter was given a major share in Cal's victory over Washington last Saturday. He is a 230-pounder who stands 6-3.

Others nominated included Pug Pearman, Tennessee; Bob Gain, Kentucky; Blaine Earon, Duke; Bob Ward, Maryland, and Bucky Curtis, Vanderbilt.

Blair Cherry, whose Texas Longhorns knocked off SMU last week, has been selected as the United Press Coach of the week. Cherry's team, beaten only by Oklahoma, is ranked No. 4 Nationally. His comment was, "Our problem is keeping the boys in the right frame of mind. Everybody will be laying for us now."

Maryland has lost fullback Ed Fullerton for the season. A torn cartilege in his knee forced the retirement. His spot will go to Ed Bolton or Karney Sciascia.

Rice's Jess Neely has 17 players under treatment for injuries. Four members of the starting lineup are included in the list, but all of them are expected to see some service against Arkansas Saturday.

Mississippi State put the finishing touches on its preparations for Kentucky and Coach Slick Morton said his club would take it easy the rest of the week. Bill Stewart, junior fullback, missed the last rough work with a bruised leg.

Ole Miss underwent its third straight scrimmage and faces another Thursday as Johnny Vaught prepares for Chattanooga.

Bill Edwards, at Vandy, was dissatisfied with his Commodores' progress and ordered another rough workout. He had a cheering note, however, when it was announced that Pete Holt, shackled by injuries since the Auburn game, would be in top condition for LSU.

Red Grange is back in the Illinois fold. The ex-All American was named to the University's Board of Trustees in Tuesday's balloting.

Billy Baggett, star of LSU's rout of Ole Miss last week, pulled a muscle in one leg and bruised the other and may not recover in time to play against Vandy.

Jesse Richardson, defensive star aginst Georgia last week, continued to shine in Alabama workouts.

Vic Janowicz and Tony Curcillo, both of Ohio State, top Big Ten scorers. Janowicz has 31 points, Curcillo 30.

TOM BIENEMANN of Drake maintained his pass catching lead among the nation's major college football teams by catching seven passes as Drake downed Bradley last Saturday. Bienemann now has a total of 40 receptions with only one game left.

Nebraska's dynamic sophomore, Bob Reynolds, scored 22 points against Missouri last Saturday to regain the individual-scoring lead among major schools. Reynolds now has a six-game total of 103 points on 15 touchdowns and 13 extra points.

Six players received weekly votes for the first time this week to swell the list of All-Southeastern Conference eligibles to 141. The newcomers are End Charley McLendon, Kentucky; Tackle Hal Voss, LSU; Guards Bill Watson, Mississippi, and Jesse Richardson, Alabama; and Backs Pat Field, Georgia, and Tom Rushing, Mississippi State.

Farm Clubs Worth High 1950 Expense

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—Farm system baseball cost major league clubs at least $5,000,000 in 1950, according to a survey by the Associated Press, but most owners feel it was worth it.

A majority of club owners blamed radio, first, and television, to a lesser degree, for some of the general attendance decline in their minor league holdings.

Almost without exception they believed farm costs are justified because baseball could not continue without the chains. Most of the present major leaguers are farm products.

Exact figures on costs are almost impossible. The boys still are adding up the books in many cities. Some clubs charge salaries of optioned players to the big leagues. Others add this to farm operations.

Some charge off costs of ball parks over a period of years. Some include scouting salaries and expenses on the major league payroll. Others make the farms take a share of the scout payroll. Most are reluctant to give out actual figures, even if available.

Fred Saigh, St. Louis Cardinal owner, reported his farms made money for the past four years; less this year, but still a profit.

Pittsburgh said its farms cost $400,000. General Manager Roy Hamey said the cost was "within reason" if it could produce one or two major leaguers a year.

Brooklyn, now in the process of reorganization since the departure of Branch Rickey, estimated the Vero Beach spring training setup cost "about $250,000."

Both the Boston Braves and Red Sox reported their farms showed a loss. They said radio broadcasts hurt attendance in the farm area but insisted television was not a factor.

The National League champion Phillies, almost entirely recruited from its organization, reported farm costs of $500,000 and a loss of $250,000. The Phils declined comment on TV or radio.

Caution was the word for the world champion New York Yankees. They estimated no costs, said radio and TV hurt some and put off discussion of 1951 plans due to the man power situation.

WILLIAMSON EXPECTS—

Tech, Georgia To Romp, Deacons To Kick Devils

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON

The Williamson rating system picks Georgia Tech and Georgia to clamber by VMI and Florida this weekend, but figures this may be that big upset week that the tail end of every season almost always has.

The sytem casts a shaky vote for Wake Forest over Duke, and goes against the ratings to name Colorado over Missouri. Other picks in the close ones are Texas over Baylor, Michigan over Indiana, Columbia over Dartmouth, Tulane over Navy, Maryland over North Carolina, Oregon State over Idaho, Purdue over Northwestern—for an upset—and Vanderbilt over LSU.

In last week's prediction, the Williamson System picked 56 right of 64 major games, and with one unlooked-for tie ended up with a week's average of 88.9, the best of the System since 1944. The season's average is 81.9.

Geri Top NFL Back

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8—(AP) Joe Geri, whose three field goals gave the Pittsburgh Steelers a 9-7 win over the Philadelphia Eagles last Sunday, also used that opportunity to dash from sixth to first place in the National Football League's ground-gaining race.

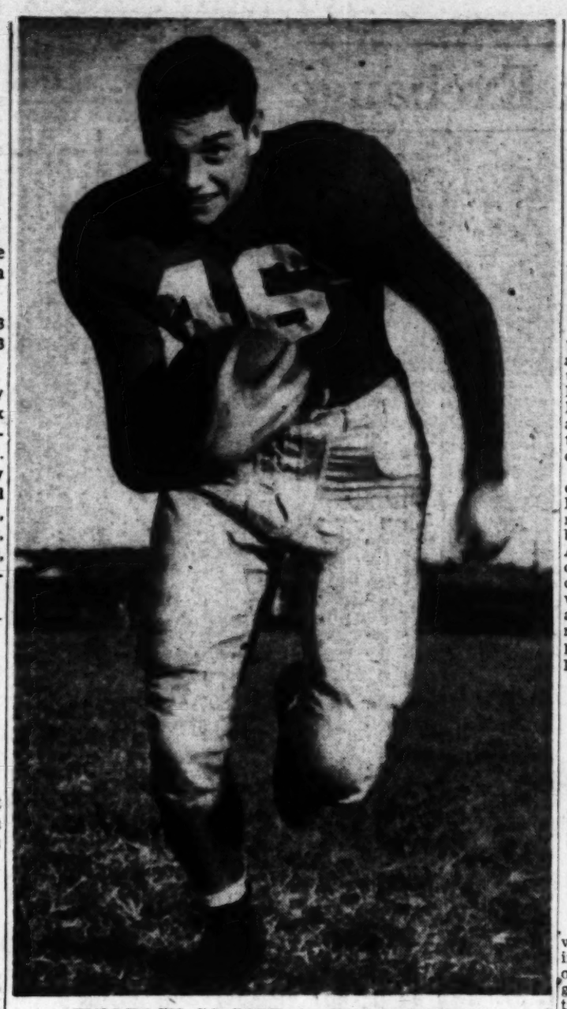

Geri, former University of Georgia star from Phoenixville, Pa., picked up 115 yards against the Eagles to bring his total for the season to 461.

Cleveland's Marion Motley holds down second place with 454 yards while last week's leader, Zollie Toth, of the New York Yankees, dropped to third with 450 yards.

Steve Van Buren of the Eagles—NFL ground-gaining record holder and champion in the department for four of the last six years—slipped into the top 10 for the first time this year Steven tied with two other players for seventh place with 364 yards.

Norm Van Brocklin, of the Los Angeles Rams, retained top honors in the passing division with an average gain of 9.75 yards. George Ratterman, of the Yankees, held onto second place with an average of 8.86 while idle last weekend. Geri, who led the passers until two weeks ago, is in third spot with an average gain of 8.06.

The league top scorer is Johnny Lujack, of the Chicago Bears, with 51 points. He is followed by Detroit's Doak Walker with 47.

FULLBACK CO-CAPTAIN FOR BULLPUPS
Francis DiPietro To Go Against Alabama

Improving Bullpups Want To Win for Buddy

ATHENS, Nov. 8—A general team improvement has satisfied Coach Larry Bouley that his 1950 Bullpups can win the Buddy Rutledge benefit game here Friday afternoon in Sanford Stadium.

"The squad has made enormous progress since losing to Auburn in the season opener," Bouley says. "And our boys are anxious to beat the Tide for Rutledge.

Although Alabama is reported to be much stronger than Auburn, the Bullpups have displayed a deceptive offense against the varsity this week.

Halfbacks Conrad Manisero of Lynhurst, N. J., and Bobby Hall of Mobile, Ala., have gained consistently against a big and more experienced varsity team. So has Athens' Monk Collins and Quitman's Kenneth Murphy.

The passing of Quarterback Billy Burt, of Adel, has also clicked against varsity opposition. A Burt-to-Hall pass scored here in Tuesday's scrimmage.

Rutledge, who was stricken with polio Sept. 27, will receive all net proceeds.

The city of Athens has recommended that business establishments allow their employees to attend the game. The University will dismiss all afternoon classes.

Bouley's probable offensive lineup includes Allan Blohm and Chuck Anderson at ends; Bill Young and Gerald Ford at tackles; Joe Whitaker and Al Viola at guards; Earl Gunn at center; Burt at quarterback; Hall and Collins at halfbacks, and Murphy at fullback.

The probable defensive unit will be Blohm and Slatic at ends; Jim Olsen and Bulldog Riley at tackles; Len Spadifino and Viola at guards; Gunn at center, and Hall, Gentry, Collins and Francis Dipietro in the backfield.

Jury Clears Boxer

NEWPORT, Wales, Nov. 8—(AP) A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that the death of an 18-year-old amateur boxer following a knockout was accidental. Coroner D. W. Evans told the jury nobody was to blame. The boxer, Gordon Avery, of Cardiff, died last Thursday.

New Jersey Track Lists Betting Rise

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP)—Some $3,100,000 more was bet at Garden State Race Track this year in a comparison of the 50-day seasons for 1949 and 1950, the New Jersey Treasury Department said Wednesday.

The department said the 1950 handle was $60,903,414 against a 1949 total of $57,729,669. Attendance also went up this year from 693,663 to 715,245 at the Camden track, it reported.

Golfdom's Gold Seekers Probe Savannah Soil For Rich Vein

By BERT PRATHER

GENERAL OGLETHORPE GOLF CLUB, SAVANNAH, Nov. 8—Golfdom's elite—the play-forpay circuit riders—pitched their tents here Wednesday for a four-day stand and and a whack at $10,000 in prize money being offered the 20 low finishers in the first annual Savannah Open starting Thursday morning.

The tournament, which has attracted 102 leading professionals and a small group of crack amateurs, will run through Sunday. It is sponsored by the Savannah Kiwanis Club with all proceeds above actual expenses going into the club's underprivileged children's fund.

With Slammin' Sambo Snead out on the Pacific Coast, Big Jim Ferrier, PGA's second leading money winner for the year, has been tipped as the man to beat. Accuracy around the small greens on this Donald Ross-designed course will pay off, and that is just what Big Jim has plenty of. He's an excellent short iron player and magnificent with the blade. The pros rate him the game's finest putter.

Most of the pros have been here two or three days, and it is the consensus among those who have tested the layout that it will take a 274 to win top money if it is not windy. If the wind acts up, 280 might be good for first money.

JOHNNY PALMER
The Carolina Ace

In addition to Ferrier, Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., who had two hot rounds in the North and South Open last week; Ed (Porky) Oliver, Kenmore, Wash.; George Fazio, Washington, D. C., sharpshooter who tied for this year's National Open title only to lose in a playoff with Ben Hogen and Lloyd Mangrum; Claude Harmon, former Masters champ from Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Bob Hamilton, Evansville, Ind., and Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., are rated good chances for the big prize.

British Amateur Champ Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio; Dick Chapman, former National Amateur champion from Pinehurst, N. C.; Bobby Knowles, Aiken, S. C., and Hobart Manley, Savannah, are leading amateur threats for the crown.

Pro Chuck Klein carded a 68 as the field finished practice rounds. Johnny Palmer and Bobby Poski posted 69s and Jim Ferrier and Glen Teal each scored 70.

Racing Club Purely for Amateurs

The Atlanta Sports Car Club, whose members will race Sunday in a special event at Lakewood, originated a month ago with a group of Atlantans interested particularly in amateur racing.

The original members of the group were Dr. Floyd McRae, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Timmis and Dr. Willard Hunnicutt.

"We decided to concentrate only on European sports cars," Timmis said, "first, because they were a lot faster than American models and second, because they were less conspicuous and more useful than regular race cars.

"The club is simply an outlet by which we can expend our liking for safe speed and at the same time gain recognition from the Sports Car Club of America."

Timmis explained that club membership is based merely upon an amateur love for auto racing. "And we don't limit it to men alone," he added. ""There'll be some women at Lakewood Sunday, too."

In addition to Sunday's five-mile event, which the club hopes to make an annual meet, it will conduct a road tour similar to the Glidden Tours of the early 1900's.

TAKING A LOSS
MAY BE GOOD BUSINESS!
Doesn't Sound Reasonable, Does It?
However, if you are an owner of securities, the provisions of the Income Tax Law relating to Capital Gains and Losses may make it advantageous for you to establish a loss. Equally so, there might be circumstances which would make it desirable to establish a profit now, rather than at some later date.
Our annual Tax Letter discussing Capital Gains and Losses from a tax viewpoint is now available on request.

INVESTIGATE ~~then~~ after you INVEST
Suppose you own 50 shares of Typical Manufacturing Corp. Perhaps you bought them in 1943. At that time, you investigated the company carefully—earnings, assets, liabilities, policies, future prospects. You were satisfied it was a good investment.
Fine. That's the only way to arrive at an intelligent investment decision. It's why we have always urged people to "Investigate then Invest."
But just a minute. That was in 1943. This is 1950—and a wholly different world. How many times since 1943 have you re-examined the Typical Manufacturing situation, just as carefully as you did originally? How many times have you compared it analytically with other good investment opportunities?
Did it ever occur to you that no investment decision can ever be a final one? Changed conditions constantly create changed investment opportunities and the investor must constantly appraise them.
In effect, every investor does precisely that, whether he does it consciously or not. Every day that you own and hold 50 shares of Typical Manufacturing, you say in effect: "I'm satisfied it's the best investment I can make of my money."
Maybe it is. If you're prepared to say so on the basis of the evidence, that's good. But if, on the other hand, you think your security holdings need careful reappraisal, why not use the facilities of our Research Department? That's one reason why we maintain a large and well-trained research staff—to help investors "Investigate after they Invest."
If you would like the most up-to-date facts on any security, if you would like a careful review of your whole portfolio, just write

GOP Tally Sparks Stock Buying Spurt

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—The stock market rushed ahead at full speed Wednesday morning, came to a full stop, and slowly settled back for the rest of the day. It was the first chance traders had to appraise the surprising strength showed by the Republican party in Tuesday's national elections.

Buyers had a spree for themselves in the first hour or so of trading. Prices shot up $1 to around $3 a share and in short order the market value of all stocks listed on the Exchange rose by roughly $1,000,000,000.

The buying bubble soon collapsed. Trade slowed to a trickle and prices gradually receded from their peak. Closing quotations were still up as much as $2 or so a share but at or near the lows for the day in many cases.

Roughly one-third of the total business was done in the first hour. Turnover for the full session totaled 1,840,000 shares, a good day's business but well under 2,570,000 Monday. The market was closed election day.

Much of the demand Wednesday morning was a carry-over from late Monday. Numerous traders figured the Monday selling had been overdone. Republican victories, raised and special dividends, and stock split-up proposals, undoubtedly helped the entire market.

Cotton Estimate Up 76,000 Bales

The U. S. Department of Agriculture Wednesday estimated this year's cotton crop at 9,945,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

This figure is 76,000 bales more than the 9,869,000 bales forecast a month ago. It compares with 16,128,999 bales produced last year and 11,599,000 for the 1939-48 10-year average.

India Hikes Duty On Cotton Export

NEW DELHI, Nov. 8—(AP)—The government Wednesday announced an increase in export duty effective immediately on raw cotton from 100 to 400 rupees ($21 to $84) per bale of 400 pounds each.

Also imposed was a new export duty of 50 percent ad valorem on all cotton waste and 30 percent ad valorem on raw wool.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—World sugar futures moved over a wide range in nervous dealings Wednesday. Traders were attempting to appraise the possibilities for hostilities and a greater demand for sugar. A good deal of profit taking was in evidence, with prices most of the time holding under the previous close.

Domestic sugar futures declined on profit taking.

Domestic raws were offered in a small way at 6.20 cents a pound delivered.

Private advices said that the British Ministry of Foods sold 20,000 tons of refined sugar to Iran.

Demand for refined was slow.

Profit-Taking Lowers Grains

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—(AP)—A large number of people who have accumulated nice paper profits in grains over the past several weeks decided to take them Wednesday.

As a result, grain prices broke sharply in active dealings. Soybeans were down 10 cents at one time and never showed any sustained rallying power. Corn also was very weak. Wheat, which has lagged on the recent advance, showed more resistance to selling pressure.

Some traders saw the election results as indicating a "less inflationary" government, but in general grain men felt the election did not play too important a role in Wednesday's market.

More important, these observers felt, was the possibility that the Chinese Communists would not start an all-out war in Korea. Traders also noted that Great Britain had concluded a deal to import coarse grain from Russia and that Cuba would export large quantities of black strap molasses to the United States. The latter is used in industrial alcohol production.

Wall Street Well Pleased Over Election

By HARRY T. MONTGOMERY

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—Wall Street, traditional citadel of conservatism, was well pleased Wednesday with the results of the election. The voting was regarded as a welcome shift away from the left.

Financial district leaders had hoped for and expected a turn in this direction, but most of them said they were surprised the trend was so sharp.

As a group, Wall Streeters now look for softened legislation in Washington, but nevertheless are prepared for firm economic controls in the near future.

They are not looking for any change in major Federal Government policies, but they expect some of the measures they had considered extreme will now be tempered. They regarded Sen. Taft's victory in Ohio as an especially welcome indication that Labor's voice would be lessened.

Cotton Futures Close Mixed

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—Cotton futures were firm Wednesday on trade buying and short covering, induced by a smaller than expected government forecast on the 1950 cotton crop. Gains at one time extended to $3.75 a bale, although most deliveries later lost about $1 a bale of the gains on increased profit taking and hedging.

The crop reporting board estimated 1950 cotton crop at 9,945,000 bales. This was an increase of 76,000 bales over the October estimate. Traders had looked for an improvement of at least 250,000 bales compared with prospects a month ago.

The Census Bureau reported cotton ginnings to Nov. 1 at 6,458,709 running bales.

Futures closed $2.12 bale higher to 35 cents lower than the previous close.

Resources Development New Association's Goal

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

In an effort to speed up unified development of the great natural resources of the Southeast, described as "the magic area of the Nation," business leaders from all parts of Georgia met here Wednesday at the Georgian Terrace Hotel and organized the Georgia Section of the Southeastern Resources Development Association, a new organization dedicated to a program of planned development and conservation of those resources in four Southeastern States—Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

Under the presidency of Dr. P. O. Davis of Auburn, Ala., director of the Alabama Agricultural Extension Service, the SRDA, organized some months ago at Gadsden, Ala., at the suggestion of Maj. Gen. Louis Pick, chief of the Corps of Engineers in Washington, is now engaged in setting up an effective organization in each of these four States.

At the meeting Wednesday, the following were elected officers of the Georgia Section:

Vice President, James W. Woodruff, Sr., Columbus; Trustees: Tom Mullen, Cedartown, Northwest Georgia area; Lee Carter of Hartwell, Savannah River Basin; John M. Cooper of Atlanta, Atlanta area; J. O. Smith, of Bainbridge, Southwest Georgia area, and James W. Woodruff, Jr., of Columbus, Middle Chattahoochee area.

Speakers stressed the importance of this organization to the economic development of Georgia. In Georgia the two most abundant natural resources are soil and water. The speakers said that the time has now come to develop them more fully through unified action.

"The water resources of the Southeast are challenging us," exclaimed Dr. Davis. "If we are to keep faith with our future, we must accept that challenge by developing them to the utmost for flood control, soil conservation, electric power, navigation, reforestation and other purposes for which we need soil and water."

Col. Bernard L. Robinson, division engineer in Atlanta for the South Atlantic Division of the Corps of Engineers, said within 200 miles of Atlanta there are sites for the economic development of 2,000,000 kilowatts of electric power, which the Southeast needs.

Other speakers were Col. Walter K. Wilson, district engineer, Mobile; Col. Robert Erlenkotter, district engineer, Savannah; Col. Vic Pearson, district engineer, Jacksonville; Col. L. Y. Mielenz, representing the Chief of Engineers, Washington; James W. Woodruff, Jr., of Columbus; Rep. Henderson Lanham of Rome, and Clark Gaines, secretary of the Georgia Department of Commerce.

CAB Examiner Hits EAL Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—Civil Aeronautics Board economists testified Wednesday against an Eastern Airlines proposal for a $41.60 air coach fare between Miami and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The proposed fare is $22.40 below regular fares.

The Commission's economists offered statistical evidence at a hearing before a board examiner in an effort to show that the low coach fare would take all passengers from regular fare operations between Miami and San Juan.

Atlantic Co. Suit Said First in Dixie

The Federal antitrust suit against the Atlantic Co., won by Atlantic, was the first of its kind to be tried in the Southeast.

The suit was similar to the one filed against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company.

The suit against the Atlantic Co. charged conspiracy to monopolize the ice business in the Southeast and to restrain trade.

Atlantic, through Charles Henry, its vice president and general counsel, maintained it in no manner was conspiring to monopolize nor restrain trade but merely was following business practices which it had considered sound for the past 35 years.

The jury, in its verdict, upheld the Company in its claim.

Defendants in the suit were C. D. Castleberry, president of the company, and F. W. Beazley, retired chairman of the board, together with seven defendant representatives of the affiliate companies in the Southeast.

The Atlantic Co. is a long-established Atlanta firm, having grown up as successor to the old Atlantic Ice & Coal Co. It began business here in 1909.

Bonds Hold Small Gains

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—A burst of post-election enthusiasm carried corporate bonds into a higher-price range Wednesday. Most of the aggressive buying took place in the opening hour of trading, however, and thereafter prices began to drift away from their top levels of the session.

Numerous issues that had tacked on substantial gains in the first hour closed the day only small fractions ahead. High-priced rails held their gains better than the low and medium-priced obligations. At the close, gains outnumbered losses by about two to one.

The opening spurt and the subsequent drift was a clear indication that while many investors were impressed by the voters' swing to the right, the grave Korean War situation still was causing much concern. Corporate bonds declined sharply at the last session Monday after Gen. MacArthur reported Communists from north of the Manchurian border had joined the Korean Reds. Volume dwindled considerably after the start and fell to a meager $2,751,000, par value, from $4,210,000 Monday.

Georgia Farm Gain Credited To Livestock

Georgia's booming livestock industry is a deciding factor in thrusting the State into the forefront of the nation in farm income gains, according to Merrill C. Lofton, regional director of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Lofton Wednesday reported that this State is among four in the nation which this year have shown an increase in cash income to farmers. From January to August Georgia farmers received $233,687,000 for their products, a 2.4 percent gain over their returns for the same period last year. Livestock and its products accounted for $104,997,000 of the amount.

The three other States recording increases are Michigan, Texas and Oregon. The Southeastern States as a group took a 10 percent loss in farm income, according to the Department of Commerce statistics.

Drygoods

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—The cotton textile market was firm Wednesday. Mills and buyers awaited the cotton crop forecast for a clue to the trend in prices. The crop reporting board placed its ideas on cotton production this year by only 76,000 bales over indications a month ago and brought a sharp upturn in futures prices. Some dealers thought that the supply outlook, coupled with Korean developments may touch off active demand for cotton goods.

The wool goods market was firm and quiet.

Demand for rayon goods was slow.

City Growth Assured By Passage of Plan

By BILL BORING

Atlanta finally is getting breathing space.

Passage of the Plan of Improvement assures this by providing for the annexation of the roomiest and fastest growing areas in the Fulton Metropolitan area.

These are the Buckhead, Lakewood and Cascade Heights areas, all three of which will be coming into the city when the plan goes into effect.

For the last 10 years Atlanta has been moving out into these sections—and into the Decatur-DeKalb sector, not included in the plan—at a fast clip.

Because they were outside the city limits, Atlanta proper has suffered from standpoints of population gains and physical plant.

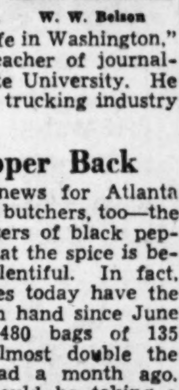

In effect, Atlanta gradually was being choked to death for lack of room. Consider, for example, the comparison of residential and commercial building so far this year within the Atlanta city limits and in metropolitan Fulton County.

Fulton County, according to Guy Eaves, Building Inspector, has issued more than $66,000,000 worth of building permits, 78 percent involving residential construction. Atlanta, according to Building Inspector W. R. Wofford, has issued only $43,441,377 worth of permits.

However, Atlanta's volume is good in comparison with the city's construction in 1949, when only $30,588,678 worth of permits were issued.

Liveliest business area within the city limits today is Peachtree, bounded by Third and Eighth Streets. Here venerable dwellings were razed to make room for office and apartment buildings.

Writer Will Speak

W. W. Belson

Walter W. Belson, director of public relations for American Trucking Associations, Washington, D. C., will address the Transportation Club of Atlanta at 12:15 p. m. Monday in the Ansley Hotel. Belson recently completed a term as president of the American Public Relations Association, is the author of a series of satirical sketches, "Life in Washington," and a former teacher of journalism at Marquette University. He has been in the trucking industry for 18 years.

Black Pepper Back

Here's good news for Atlanta housewives, and butchers, too—the city's biggest users of black pepper. Word is that the spice is becoming more plentiful. In fact, U. S. warehouses today have the largest stocks on hand since June—a total of 6,480 bags of 135 pounds each, almost double the amount they had a month ago. The product should be taking a big tumble in price before long. Current price here is around 89 cents for four ounces, a 20-cent rise since Aug. 1.

Retail Trade Gains

Latest figures released by the Regional Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce reveal that Atlanta retail business is well ahead of the national average, which in itself is 14 percent above that of last year. In September, latest month tabulated, Atlanta grocery stores registered a 33 percent gain, lumber and building material dealers 60 percent, motor vehicle 32 percent, furniture 35 percent, apparel 15 percent, department stores 11 percent and drugs five.

New Transit Quarters

The Atlanta Transit Company is now comfortably settled in its new quarters, the Transit Building, formerly the old Atlanta Journal Building, 5 Forsyth St., N. W., Jackson Dick, chairman of the company's board, advices. The company plans to hold an open house for its employees and the public Wednesday.

Chrysler Boosts Output

Despite more than 100 days of strike idleness early this year, Chrysler has pushed its 1950 passenger car production above the 1,000,000 unit mark, it was announced Wednesday in Detroit. Its car output this year now exceeds that of the same period last year, but truck assemblies still lag behind the 1949 total.

X-Ray Inspection

By use of X-ray equipment with fluoroscopic techniques, the Army at the Atlanta General Depot is cutting the cost of inspecting canned goods. With the X-ray fluoroscopic technique, sorted canned goods can be examined minutely at high speed on an automatic conveyor belt system. The method, according to Col. Clyde Massey, commanding officer, not only discloses bulging cans and other defects but also indicates presence and degree of deterioration in the contents.

Metal Pinch Seen

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—Shortages of steel and nonferrous metals are sure to become much more acute in the months ahead as the full weight of defense and essential civilian programs begins to be felt, Iron Age said Wednesday.

"Within a few months these programs combined will be taking about a third of all steel produced," the national metalworking weekly predicted.

CITY HALL NEWS

Tax Laws' Revamping Seen in Expansion

By HERMAN HANCOCK

A scientific reshuffling of Atlanta's business licenses and tax laws to provide additional money for public improvements "as painlessly as possible" will be proposed by Sixth Ward Councilman Wayne Blanchard.

The Councilman Wednesday emphasized that the projected extension of the Atlanta City limits to include 82 additional square miles, which the people approved in Tuesday's election, will make mandatory a more business-like administration of municipal affairs.

He stressed the fact that Atlanta's Municipal Auditorium cost $95,186 to operate and maintain in 1949, but that collections were nearly $8,000 below that figure. Other divisions also must be made self-sustaining at least. Blanchard believes, and City business licenses should be based on some sort of sliding scale where large and lucrative organizations would pay more to operate than their modest competitors.

"We must approach a revision of our licenses and taxes in a spirit of co-operation and without any attempt to raise taxes generally," Blanchard said, "but we must take action to see that the City is operated on a sound basis, and that everyone pays his fair share of the cost of government. I will ask City Council's Tax committee to authorize a study immediately."

Fire Safety Plans

Seven Atlanta office building owners have hired architects to prepare their structures to meet fire safety regulations, William Wofford, City Building Inspector, announced. They include the Healey, Forsyth, C. & S. Bank, Peters, Candler, Rhodes Haverty, and Connally buildings. In addition, owners of four other business buildings are preparing to make changes to make their structures conform to fire safety codes.

Expansion Project

Mayor Hartsfield Wednesday expressed "satisfaction" at approval of constitutional amendments in Tuesday's election implementing an 82-square-mile expansion the Atlanta City limits. He added, however, that Atlanta and Fulton County Governments face a tremendous task in working out details, and urged the Local Government Commission to speed up the draft of needed laws to effect the revision. Ed White, Attorney for the Commission, already has delivered to Assistant City Attorney J. Charlie Murphy preliminary drafts of several of the needed laws necessary for the 1952 program. Murphy will read them and final drafts will be made and submitted to the Legislative delegation for presentation to the 1951 session of the Georgia assembly.

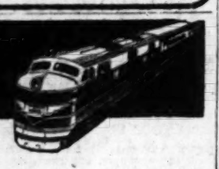

Suit Deadline

The Atlanta Board of Education has until Dec. 7 to answer a suit filed by a group of Negroes in Federal District Court to end segregation in Atlanta schools. J. Charlie Murphy, Assistant City Attorney, handled details, it was said. The suit was filed Sept. 19, and one extension already had been granted. If successful, the suit would throw the doors of all Atlanta schools open to all persons regardless of race or color.

OBITUARY

Charles Schreider

Funeral services for Charles Schreider, 67, painter, of 420 Melrose Ave., Decatur, who died Monday in a private hospital after a short illness, will be held at 11 a. m. Thursday in Trinity Chapel. The Rev. Dermon A. Sox will officiate. Burial will be in Mountain View Cemetery.

Mr. Schreider, a native of Berne, Switzerland, was a member of the Lutheran Church. He had no known survivors.

J. M. Blankenship

James M. Blankenship, 81, retired farmer, of Roosevelt Hwy., Route 1, College Park, died Wednesday in a private hospital after a short illness.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday in the chapel of Howard L. Carmichael & Sons. Dr. James L. Baggott and the Rev. W. T. Booth will officiate. Burial will be in College Park Cemetery.

A native of Mecklenburg County, N. C., Mr. Blankenship was graduated from the University of North Carolina, and came to Atlanta in 1892 with his wife. While living in Atlanta, he was a charter member of Edgewood Baptist Church. He joined College Park First Baptist Church when he moved to College Park in 1920.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Grant E. Allen, of College Park; two sons, W. N. Blankenship, of Atlanta, and V. K. Blankenship, of College Park; three sisters, Misses Sula and May Blankenship and Mrs. Jane Miller; five brothers, John, Stough, William, Tom and Steve Blankenship, all of North Carolina, and five grandchildren.

C. E. Ingram

C. E. Ingram, 77, former Norcross grocery salesman, of 17 Simpkins St., Decatur, died Wednesday in a private hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday in Mt. Carmel Methodist Church, Norcross. The Rev. W. Arnold Smith will officiate. Burial will be in the churchyard.

Born in Atlanta Feb. 25, 1873, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Peter Ingram, formerly of Greenville, S. C. He was later taken to Norcross, where he lived until two years ago, then moved to Decatur.

Surviving are three brothers, A. J. and W. A. Ingram, both of Valdosta, and Charlie C. Ingram, of Great Falls, S. C., and several nieces and nephews.

Board Urges Crippled Child Fund Pact

Atlanta's Fund Appeals Board Wednesday urged the 13-year-old Crippled Children League to "resolve its differences" with the newly organized Georgia Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The league, which is sponsored by the Elks Club and supports Aidmore, was dismissed from the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults as a "captive" organization in March. The Georgia Society was organized two weeks ago as a local affiliate of the national organization. Dr. Herman L. Turner is its head.

Both the Elk-sponsored league and the national organization had made application to the Fund Appeals Board for Easter seal fund-raising campaigns. The board indicated it felt that competitive, simultaneous campaigns would confuse contributors and cut down donations to the detriment of crippled children in the State.

Bob Pruitt, chairman of the board of directors of the league, told the Appeals Board a meeting with the new organization had been set for Nov. 14. The board voted to hold a special called meeting immediately after to decide which application it will approve.

Etzel F. Hannah Funeral Thursday

Funeral services for Etzel F. Hannah, 68-year-old prominent Tucker citizen who died at his home Tuesday night after a short illness, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the Tucker Methodist Church.

E. F. Hannah

The Rev. W. W. Cash, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in the Tucker Cemetery.
